McClure calls measure unfair

Senate passes Idaho wilds bill

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

WASHINGTON — By a vote of 69-18, the Senate Tuesday passed and sent to the House a bill creating a 2.2-million-acre River of No Return Wilderness area in the heart of Idaho's back country.

The measure, authored by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, contains 1.5 million acres in the existing Idaho and Salmon River Breaks Primitive Areas, plus an additional 700,000 acres located primarily south and east of the existing primitive areas.

Idaho's senators split on the measure. Church, in voting for the bill, called it "a victory for all Idahoans who cherish the concept of balanced and wise use of our natural resources. It strikes the balance between competing interests which have been the source of controversy for over a decade. It demonstrates that by careful draftsmanship of substantive legislation, we can wisely provide for a thriving forest products industry, continued mining and a magnificent wilderness that will become one of the jewels of the National Wilderness system."

But Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, in opposing the measure, said the bill "makes a mockery of the word balance." The proposal has a "total lack of balance in land management" that "puts jobs of Idaho working men and women in jeopardy," he added. Church's bill is unfair both to Idaho and the nation, McClure said.

In Boise, Ted Trueblood, president of the River of No Return Wilderness Council, applauded Church for his leadership in the successful passage of the bill.

"The people of Idaho and, in fact, all Americans are deeply indebted to Senator Frank Church for his years of dedication to establish an adequate wilderness in the Salmon River country, Trueblood said.

McClure had proposed an amendment to the bill requiring by law the opening of some 900,000 acres of land outside the wilderness area to multiple-use management. That amendment was defeated 67-21, after arguments from Church the land would be managed as multiple use without such "statutory release language."

Inclusion of the specific language would also hurt the bill's chance of passage in the House of Representatives, Church said.

Senators also approved 58-30 a Church amendment which the Idaho Democrat said would ease restrictions on future cobalt mining in the West Panther Creek area of the new wilderness — an area of approximately 25,000-10,000 acres.

McClure, however, criticized the amendment as not as strong as one he had proposed. Future restrictions on cobalt mining in the West Panther Creek area could still be extensive, McClure warned.

Included in the bill are most of the 2.3 million acres recommended for wilderness by the River of No Return Wilderness Council, including nearly all of the drainage of the Middle Fork of the Salmon River. In contrast, most representatives of Idaho's timber industry had urged a smaller 1.3 million acre wilderness.

Iran invites military act, Carter hints

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini Tuesday threatened to put 49 remaining American hostages on trial as "proven" spies. President Carter hinted at military action if peaceful solutions fail to free the captives.

The United States ordered a naval task force headed by the aircraft carrier Kittyhawk to proceed from Subic Bay in the Philippines to Indian Ocean in an apparent move to strengthen the image of U.S. military might in the area south of Iran.

Though Carter did not specifically mention military action to free the captives from their 17-day ordeal, it was understood he has reversed policy and stands ready to use force if necessary.

"The United States is seeking every peaceful solution to this problem through the U.N. and [illegible] available channel," Carter's statement said. "This is far preferable to the other remedies available to the United States.

"Such remedies are explicitly available to the United Nations. The Government of Iran must recognize the gravity of the situation it has created."

Carter returned from Camp David Tuesday after Khomeini declared that the 49 American captives in the U.S. Embassy were spies "proven by evidence" and faced trial in the shah was not returned to Iran.

Taunting the U.S. leader as helpless, Khomeini said, "Carter tries to frighten us, some time militarily and some time economically. He knows it himself that he is beating an empty drum. Neither does he have military capability nor does he have any following."

Carter was "considering these (men) as diplomats, these whose spying has been proven by evidence," Khomeini said.

"If he doesn't send (the shah), it is possible they (the hostages) may be put on trial and Carter will know the consequences if they are put on trial," Khomeini warned.

"The disgrace for Carter will be when the spies are tried," the 79-year-old Islamic leader said.

Iranian acting Foreign Minister, Abdul Hassan, Bani-Sadr, told ABC news Tuesday that Ramsey Clark, who had been sent as a special envoy to Iran by President Carter, would now be welcome to Tehran to talk with Iranian officials. When Clark earlier attempted to enter Iran, he never got further than Turkey.

Until now, the White House has said repeatedly the United States would not use military force against Iran to end the hostage crisis.

It was understood the United States could [illegible] Iran and justify it inherent right of United Nations charter, which recognizes "the inherent right of self defense" of all member nations.

The charter also says a nation can take "appropriate action by land, sea or air forces" in self defense.

The White House gave no details of what type of military strike might be considered or what action by Iran might trigger it.

Administration officials said former U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young would fly to Iran in an unofficial attempt to win the release of the hostages.

The clause in the U.N. charter Carter referred to in his statement was Chapter VII, Article 51:

"Nothing in the present charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense if an armed attack occurs against a member of the United Nations, until the Security Council has taken measures to maintain international peace and security."

Visiting soloist in concert

A large crowd listened appreciatively to cellist Leonard Rose Tuesday evening during a concert in the Fine Arts Auditorium at the College of Southern Idaho. Rose, a former member of the New York Philharmonic, performed a Saint-Saens cello concerto with the Magic Valley Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Lawrence Curtis. Rose is also a faculty member of the Juilliard School of Music.

Rockies buried in snow

By United Press International

A Thanksgiving-week storm dumped up to 3 feet of snow on the peaks of the Colorado Rockies and more than 1 foot in southwestern Wyoming Tuesday, snarling traffic, closing schools and even halting production at a nuclear weapons plant.

At least five deaths — three in a Nebraska tractor-trailer accident and two in a plane crash — were blamed on the storm.

Authorities said a woman and two children were killed when the woman lost control of a tractor-trailer rig, which hit a guardrail and bridge support at the Hershey, Neb., exit of Interstate 80 west of North Platte.

Snow was falling at the time and the highway was icy in spots, authorities said.

A twin-engine business jet from Albuquerque, N.M., crashed near Castle Rock, Colo., late Monday as the storm first struck the area. Two people were killed and a third seriously injured.

Wyoming Gov. Ed Herschler called out the Army National Guard to assist in the rescue of stranded travelers, including 50 motorists south of Cheyenne.

Thirteen inches of snow had fallen on Cheyenne with no sign of a let up, and the city's airport was closed for only the second time in history. State and federal offices and schools also closed and the Wyoming Highway Patrol closed to traffic all major highways in the area.

Blowing snow and icy roads caused hazardous driving conditions over the eastern two-thirds of the state.

"Everybody's stranded. We're trying to get everybody off the highway," Highway Patrol Dispatcher Linda Schmidt said. "If we have to we're going to use snowmobiles."

The weather shut down scores of schools — including the University of Colorado at Boulder for the first time since 1973.

Only one council member supports change

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — All but one member of the Twin Falls City Council, and both city councilmen-elect say they support the city manager form of government.

Of the three council members who signed a budget report in May recommending a change to the elected mayor form of government, Mary McClusky, Jim Smallwood, and Chris Talkington, only Talkington is supporting the proposed change.

Councilman-elect Alan Wubker, who had previously supported an elected mayor form of government, switched his position during the final days of the city council campaign.

Talkington said an elected mayor form of government would provide stronger leadership in the city government. That leadership is needed to meet growth-related problems facing the city, he said.

Special election

"I would say the reasons could be it's more responsive, more positive, centralized leadership, and fiscal accountability," he said. "Probably the most important (advantage) is a restoration of checks and balances in our city government similar to those in the state and national governments."

Talkington said his support of an elected mayor system is not based on personalities. But he acknowledges personalities have entered into the issue.

"A name or a personality can't help but come into it, but I really think it's subservient to the issue of who runs a town," he said. "I look at it more as a phenomena of the rapid growth the city is experiencing," he said.

Talkington was a member of a council committee which in May recommended changing the form of government to facilitate new growth and cope with Idaho's 1 percent law.

The committee reported: "The committee feels the only way for Twin Falls to facilitate new growth and cope with the 1 percent is to incorporate more people in local decision-making. The best way to that end is a return to a popularly elected mayor form of city management."

Smallwood said that position was based on fiscal concern. An elected mayor would cost the city less in terms of salaries, he said.

"The opinion in the budget committee did suggest that a change be made," Smallwood said. "My analysis of that was based on dollars and not on politics."

Smallwood feels the political advantages of the manager system outweigh the savings of the mayor system.

"I believe that the manager is not as susceptible as an elected mayor would be to special interests or pressure groups," he said. "Under a manager form, because he serves at the pleasure of the council, special interests or pressure groups have to get to seven people as opposed to getting a commitment from one, that being the mayor."

McClusky, who chaired the budget committee, said the report was merely a representation of public sentiments and not her own.

"I recommended what the majority of the people told us to do," she said. "That was our report."

The city manager system offers professional, non-political management not guaranteed under an elected mayor form of government, she said. "That to me is very important," she said. "I do think he's to work as a hired person. He's not going to think, 'If I don't do this, I won't be elected,' " she said.

Wubker said he changed his opinion after researching the issue.

A major point in changing his mind was the professional management offered by the city manager form, he said.

"You'll have a better chance of having qualified people with more expertise in running a city than we would with the mayor form of government," he said.

He added even under the mayor form, a trained administrator would likely be needed. "With this reasoning, we'll have two highly paid officials with the mayor form of government rather than one," he said.

The city manager system can be every bit as responsive and possibly more so as an elected mayor form of government, he said. An elected mayor is not necessarily going to respond on controversial issues if he can side-step them, he said.

"The city manager is not under the gun, is not gun shy by mistakes he makes," he said. "The mayor is not apt to want to make major decisions because he is under the gun."

Councilman Bud Cheney said electing a mayor with a veto would make city government increasingly political.

"I feel the other form of government magnifies the controversiality of problems because of the mayor's power of veto," Cheney

Regretful British art historian says he passed low-grade information to Soviets and his spying didn't endanger lives

LONDON (UPI) — A contrite Anthony Blunt, unmasked as a former Russian spy, said Tuesday his espionage career had been "an appalling mistake" and disclosed he had refused a Soviet order to defect almost 30 years ago.

Seventy-two years old and in disgrace, the tall, silver-haired Blunt issued his first public statement on his double life since Queen Elizabeth stripped him of his knighthood last week.

The former art adviser to the queen, said he first began working for the Russians when he was a student at Cambridge in the 1930s as a means of combatting faselsm. He said he chose "political conscience" over loyalty to his country.

By the end of World War II, he said, he had become "totally disillusioned" and he defied a Soviet order to defect because, "I'd rather spend one month in danger in England than 10 years in Russia."

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher revealed Blunt's part in the spy scandal that stunned Britain to a shocked House of Commons last week.

Asked by the BBC if he had anything to say to the people of Britain, Blunt replied, "I can only say I acted according to my conscience and I bitterly regret now what I did."

He declined to answer a number of queries — such as how many other agents he had recruited — on grounds of national security. But asked if there were any other members of the spy ring still left, he said, "I think there must be."

Blunt appeared completely composed in his television appearance, speaking calmly and in a firm voice. He wore a gray sports coat, blue sweater and silver-rimmed glasses, and looked and acted every inch the English aristocrat.

Asked how he felt about his past, Blunt said, "I now realize I was totally wrong."

He said his contacts with the Russians ceased after the war, "and at that time I began to realize what an appalling mistake I'd made."

Asked how it felt to be called a traitor, Blunt shrugged and said, "I can't deny it."

But he denied any lives were endangered during the war as a result of his spying, saying most of the information he passed on involved German intelligence services. He said he had "no information" about British agents or military defenses.

He made a full confession to British authorities in 1964 in exchange for immunity from prosecution and cooperation with British intelligence officials.

Blunt denied that he had a homosexual relationship with Burgess, as had been widely speculated, and said "in no sense" was homosexuality used as a leverage to persuade him to join the spy ring.

Senate passes Idaho wilderness bill

Also included in today's proposed wilderness package are 125 miles of the main stem of the Salmon River now within the National Wild and Scenic Rivers system. About 105,000 acres of the Magruder Corridor was added to the existing Selway-Bitterroot wilderness area.

Much of Tuesday's debate focused on McClure's call for specific multiple use release language.

Arguing he had no objection in principle to writing such language into the bill, Church said the amendment would "scuttle the bill" in the House. Rep. Morris Udall, D-Arizona, chairman of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, had warned he would consider no legislation with such language, Church said.

Church said the intent of McClure's amendment could be obtained by including within the official reports accompanying the bill the legislative intent that these areas be opened for multiple use management.

Church also cited two letters, from Asst. Agriculture Secretary Rupert Cutler and Forest Service Chief Max Peterson, saying the areas would be managed for multiple use if Congress so directs in its reports.

The bill allows commercial enterprises, including outfitters and guides to continue operations in the region. Operating airstrips in the area would be allowed to remain open, unless there is "extreme danger to aircraft using such airstrips." Even this closing would require written agreement from Idaho's state government.

Other provisions of the measure include:

• Exclusion of a road from Elk City, Idaho, to Darby, Mont., along with a corridor of 300 feet on either side of that road, from the Wilderness area. The road slices through part of the proposed wilderness area.

• Requiring the Secretary of Agriculture to continue to provide access for livestock grazing in areas where grazing is now allowed.

• Expressly prohibiting the federal government from usurping state water rights in the wilderness region.

• Managing the 46 miles of the Salmon River between the confluence of the North Fork and Corn Creek as a recreational river, while managing the remaining 79 miles downstream to Long Tom bar as a wild river.

Most council members favor keeping manager said. A mayor's support would become crucial to proposals made by special interest groups, he said.

The city manager form offers a more professional approach to city government, Councilman Hank Woodall said.

"I have experience both with the elected mayor and the city manager form of government and in my mind, there isn't any question that the less expensive and the more efficient is the city manager who receives his directions through the policies set by the city council," Woodall said.

Councilman-elect Paul Newton said he also supports retaining the city manager form, calling it more efficient and more progressive.

The city manager system gives the best chance of providing the city with trained, professional management, he said. An elected mayor system does not guarantee a professional city administrator.

"There are no qualifications for an elected official like a mayor," he said. Both lame duck City Council members say they also support the city manager system.

Mayor Leon Smith said the city manager system allows the city's chief administrator to get down to the business of running a city without being burdened by political concerns.

"I think it's more effective. I think it's less political. It lets the city be run more like a business than on the good-ole-buddy theory," he said.

"Any mayor would have to hire a professional administrator," he said. "But any mayor will serve those who put him in office when the opportunity arises."

Councilman Gordon Cox warned against deciding the issue on personality grounds. "We don't want to sacrifice the type of government we have just to justify the needs of some individuals," he said.

If voters opt for the elected mayor form, most council members say they will run for election as would be required. But Woodall and Newton say they would not run for election again.

"I chose to run within this form of government where I felt I could be effective," Newton said.

Mosque stormed in Mecca

RIYAD, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — Armed Islamic gunmen seized the Holy Mosque in Mecca during dawn prayers Tuesday and held worshippers captive, the Defense Ministry said Wednesday.

In Washington, U.S. officials, who have been in contact with the embassy in Jeddah all day, said late Tuesday they know there has been violence but it was confined to the revered mosque.

Riyad Radio announced that armed "renegades to the Islamic religion" stormed the the Holy Mosque of Mecca but that measures had been taken to contain the situation.

Network complaint upheld

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission Tuesday upheld a complaint by President Carter's re-election committee that ABC, NBC and CBS acted illegally in refusing to sell it a half hour of prime television time.

The commission gave the networks until Nov. 26 to indicate how they will comply.

Kissinger blasts Carter

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said Tuesday the United States owes the shah of Iran asylum while he is ill, and called his downfall America's biggest foreign policy debacle in a generation.

Kissinger, in a speech to the Republican Governors Conference, also suggested the United States withhold grain from Russia as pressure against Soviet "expansionism."

Kissinger criticized President Carter and his administration for being "unable or unwilling" to help Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi stay in power.

Zambia on war footing

LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI) — President Kenneth Kaunda charged Tuesday that Zimbabwe Rhodesia had launched a "full-scale war" against Zambia. He mobilized his 12,000-man army but stopped short of formally declaring war.

Warning that the two African neighbors were on the brink of a war whose first casualty would be the delicate Zimbabwe Rhodesia peace conference in London, Kuanda ordered a full military alert, called up his reserves and declared that Zambia stood ready to pursue the fighting "to it logical conclusion."

"I call upon the people and residents of Zambia to realize we are in a full-scale war and to assist in vigilance all over the country," Kuanda said.

Mental patient recaptured

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — A mental patient returned to the business college where he had asked students to witness his threatened suicide in September, and restaged the scene before surrendering to police after 11 hours.

Louis Posey, 27, finally put down his 30-30 rifle and ended Monday's siege at the Knoxville Business College after talking to Teresa Robinson, a student who had been one of his hostages in September.

Posey was on a 10-day leave from Lakeshore Mental Health Institute, where officials said he was responding well to treatment.

Kids ads crackdown halted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a move to clip the Federal Trade Commission's wings, the Senate Commerce Committee voted Tuesday to kill the agency's crackdown on children's TV advertising.

Consumer lobbyists promptly accused the panel of advocating fraud and knuckling under to big business because children don't have political clout.

Can't agree on truce

LONDON (UPI) — While the escalating war in Zimbabwe Rhodesia spilled over into Zambia, the London-based negotiations for a cease-fire bogged down Tuesday in a bitter dispute between Britain and the guerrilla Patriotic Front.

Today's weather

Mostly fair with highs around 40

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas:

Mostly fair through Thanksgiving Day, with a few patches of early morning fog or low clouds. High temperatures near 40 today and 40 to 45 on Thursday. Lows in the teens.

Camas Prairie, Hailey, lower Wood River valley:

Mostly fair through Thanksgiving Day with scattered patches of fog and low clouds in the valleys. High temperatures in the 30s. Overnight lows zero to 10 above.

Synopsis:

A fair, cool Thanksgiving Day appears in prospect for Idaho as a ridge of high pressure slowly moving to the southeast will keep clouds to the southeast and the northwest of Idaho.

On Tuesday, skies were fair over most of the state, although some areas of fog and low clouds hung on in northern Idaho and in some sections of the Magic Valley and Snake River Valley. Afternoon temperatures remained generally in the 30s and low 40s after skidding into the teens and lower. Stanley reported a chilling 19 degrees below zero and Dixie was 1 below.

For northern Nevada, skies will be clear today with increasing high clouds on Thursday and a slight warming trend. Nights will be cold with minimum readings near zero or below. Daytime highs will be near 40.

13 hostages to return home

WIESBADEN, West Germany (UPI) — Ten Americans freed Tuesday from the Tehran embassy arrived at a U.S. military hospital for "a very emotional reunion" with the three hostages who preceded them. All 13 were promised they would be home for Thanksgiving.

They phoned their families, answered questions from intelligence experts, and held impromptu parties.

But their joy at being freed after 16 days as the prisoners of militant Moslems was tempered by concern for the 49 hostages left behind at the occupied embassy in Iran, a State Department spokesman said.

"All 13 have uppermost in their minds the release of those friends and colleagues they left behind in Tehran," said George Sherman, public affairs officer of the State Department Bureau of Near East and Southern Asian affairs.

Sherman joined the 10 Americans — six black men and four women — on a U.S. Air Force C-9 medical airlift jet to the Rhein-Main air force base from Paris, where they arrived on a commercial Iran Air flight.

Officials kept the Americans away from reporters after they left Tehran, apparently out of concern for the impact of unguarded statements on the Americans still held in the embassy.

But newsmen who got close enough to see the Americans said two of the women were fighting to hold back tears as they were driven in a military medical bus from the airbase to the U.S. Air Force hospital at Landsay air station, Wiesbaden.

U.S. presses deportation plans

By United Press International

The families of 13 American hostages freed by Moslem militants in Tehran expressed relief Tuesday but were concerned over the militants' decision to free only blacks and women.

A civil rights leader vowed blacks would not be "pawns for enemies of America," and U.S. immigration officials pressed a campaign to deport Iranians, with an Iranian student arrested for jaywalking among the latest ordered to leave the country.

Mohammed Hemmatipour, a 24-year-old student at the University of the District of Columbia, was stopped for jaywalking Monday. Authorities learned his visa had expired and he was ordered to leave the country by Dec. 19.

He has been attending school in this country since 1975 and needed 15 more months of school to receive a degree in respiratory therapy.

Mohammed said he opposed what is happening in Iran and expressed anger over his deportation.

News of Iran's gold breaks vault's secrecy

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Treasury Department has cracked the iron-clad secrecy surrounding the world's largest gold cache at the New York Federal Reserve Bank by revealing Iran has $600 million in gold holdings in the United States.

So highly prized is the confidentiality surrounding the vault buried 80 feet below street level on Manhattan bedrock, the Fed will not reveal which countries and international organizations have gold accounts at the bank, much less the value of the gold.

In revising the estimate of Iranian assets frozen in this country, however, the Treasury Monday included $600 million in gold as part of the total of more than $8 billion in assets, up from an earlier $6 billion estimate.

Officials of the New York Fed Tuesday said they could recall no previous instance where the amount of gold held in a vault account was disclosed publicly, even where assets of a foreign country have been blocked.

At a market price of $390 an ounce, the $600 million in Iranian gold in this country amounts to more than 1.5 million ounces.

That amounts to less than half of 1 percent of the more than $141 275 billiorin gold, valued at world prices, that is held in the vault — the world's largest known accumulation of gold.

The fortress-like New York Fed -- a robbery never has been attempted -- has stored gold since 1924 as a convenience for foreign countries, central banks and international institutions. It now has about 140 of the official accounts, but no U.S. gold is stored there.

Hints of dollar rejection surface

NEW YORK (UPI) — The report that Iran's Central Bank had sought approval to discard the dollar as payment for its oil, later withdrawn, renewed speculation about the impact on the dollar of such an action by the oil cartel.

OPEC countries have repeatedly hinted at such a possibility, and even Saudi Arabia, the United States strongest ally in the cartel, has said it would consider alternatives to dollar pricing and payment if the dollar's value kept declining.

Random mobile home plan unwise

The Twin Falls County Commission may decide today whether to expand the areas where residents can freely locate mobile homes.

The proposal under consideration would amend county zoning laws to permit mobile homes to be located outside mobile home parks anywhere in what is known as the residential-agricultural zone. Now that is only possible in agricultural areas.

We urge the commissioners not to adopt the amendment.

Two things are wrong with extending blanket permission for mobile homes from rural areas into mixed residential-agricultural areas, which almost all border Twin Falls and other towns. It is unfair to present and future owners of houses and it is unfair to city residents.

The city of Twin Falls has asked the commission to defer the amendment until the city and county can agree on an area of impact. That impact zone would give the city planning and zoning more control over residential areas outside city limits. This control would include most of the county's residential-agricultural lands. The county mobile home amendment would not apply in the impact zone, once approved.

It is bad faith on the part of the commissioners to make substantial changes in those areas that will end up in the city's impact zone and eventually become part of Twin Falls.

Most mobile homes are an attractive, economical alternative to housing, especially for the young. They are rapidly becoming the only opportunity for many people to buy a home, as construction costs and mortgage rates continue to shoot up.

But nothing in the city or county laws prevents the development of mobile home parks or subdivisions or even mixed subdivisions, if a developer so chooses.

Despite the high quality of some mobile homes, the plain facts of life are that they do not meet the county and city building codes, which are applied to all houses.

This tends to create problems if mobile homes are allowed to mix indiscriminately in future residential areas.

First the city can be challenged or even sued by new home builders who are required to meet building codes. The home builder can claim discrimination. He is being forced to meet construction standards that the mobile home owner was not. When mobile homes are confined to parks and mobile home subdivisions this claim cannot be made.

The second potential problem is the chance that randomly located mobile homes could bring down the value of houses in a residential area. If the mobile home amendment is adopted, current homeowners would have no assurance what quality of mobile home might move in next door.

The amendment should be deferred or dropped because of these considerations. Otherwise the city and the county could be prey to challenges from future home builders and homeowners could be harmed.

But just as importantly, the city and the county should agree on an area of impact before substantial zoning law changes are made.

Heavy mail

© Los Angeles Times Syndicate

WASHINGTON — The mail has been rather heavy this week. A lady in Manhattan writes:

Dear Mr. B.,

I just received my bank statement from Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. and have been credited with $3 billion to my account. My husband said it couldn't be the bank's fault because they don't make errors. He said I must have messed up my checkbook again. I went over every stub and could not find a $3 billion mistake. I found one for $17.50 and another for $60, but none for the larger amount.

I am certain someone put the $3 billion in my account by mistake. My question is, should I notify the bank or keep the information to myself in hopes that Manufacturers Trust doesn't discover it?

Please advise.

Mrs. Paul Conway

Dear Mrs. Conway,

Your husband is correct in saying that large banks do not make mistakes. Therefore, it seems to me that you may have deposited $3 billion in your checking account and forgot to keep the receipt. Or perhaps someone with the same name deposited $3 billion in her account and you were credited with it.

I'd advise you not to tell the bank as they will get very upset with you for bothering them on such a trivial matter. They will either ask you to move your account to another bank or will bill you with a service charge for making them go into their computers.

I would leave the $3 billion in your account for six months. If you don't hear from Manufacturers Hanover by then you can start writing large checks on the assumption that, even if the bank made such an unlikely error, they will be too embarrassed to admit it.

Sincerely,

A.B.

Dear Sir,

I live in Key West and do a lot of Scuba diving off the coast of Florida. For the past three months I keep hearing a lot of shoveling and digging when I'm under water. Is it possible that the Russian Combat Brigade is digging a tunnel from Cuba to Miami? If so, should I notify President Carter?

Lee Fentress

Dear Lee,

Please don't say anything. President Carter is having enough trouble getting his SALT Treaty through. If Sen. Frank Church hears about the tunnel he'll demand that the President do something about it.

The Soviets will maintain that they're only building the tunnel as a training exercise. Carter will have to take their word for it because he still doesn't know what the Soviet brigade is doing in Cuba. Besides you're not sure the tunnel is being dug by the Russians. It could be our own CIA digging one to Havana to find out what is going on there.

Sincerely,

A.B.

Dear Mr. B.,

I'm a marshmallow salesman and I met this nice guy in a bar in Bloomington, Minn. He said he was the manager of the New York Yankees and he bought me a drink. Then I offered him a free marshmallow and he bit me in the mouth. I had to have 11 stitches on my lip. Now he wants me to do a Late Beer TV commercial with him. What do you think?

Yours truly,

Bloody Manny

Dear Manny,

As soon as your lip heals I'd do it. There is a lot more money to be made in selling beer than in toasting marshmallows. But tell him if he socks you in the mouth again, you will hit him over the head with a beer bottle.

A.B.

Go to mayor

Editor, Times-News:

A mayor and city council form of city government is in the best interest of our community. An elected official as city administrative head of city government is by the nature of his position more responsive to the will of the people.

Whoever may be elected mayor of Twin Falls is sure to be a permanent resident of the community at the time of his election; a person who has shown to be interested in the community and one who will continue to live here as a resident with continuing interest after his term of office is over.

This situation as mayor is opposite that of a city manager. To a city manager, whose office is appointive, Twin Falls is a temporary home. It is a place to live during the time of his appointment. His profession prevents him from putting roots down which bind him to the community with family ties and a long time residency which make for a permanent interest in the affairs of the community.

I am saying by the nature of the two positions the mayor has more genuine interest in the affairs and welfare of the city than does a city manager. This interest will be reflected in his performance as mayor. He will feel himself close to the problems of the city and close to the people.

The point is made by apologists for the city manager form of government that it is more efficient. This is debatable. Our city manager hires experts to assist him in every phase of city management, even to the hiring of an assistant city manager, who himself has received training for the position of city manager.

Another reason given against a mayor-city council form of government is that too much politics will be involved. We must then ask if too much politics is involved in choosing our state representatives or our governor, or in the process of law-making in our legislature. These officials are elected and give service in as just and fair a political program as is possible to conceive under the democratic process. Why would the election and service of a mayor in the city of Twin Falls be any less just and fair?

There are many fine and capable people in Twin Falls who would do an excellent job as mayor of the city, many who are trained and experienced in administrative work, and who are dedicated to the principal of public service.

Let's bring the government of twin Falls back to the people with a man of the people's choice — a city mayor.

STERLING C. LARSON

Keep manager

Editor, Times-News:

I support our present council-manager form of government because it is efficient and effective. I'm proud to live in Twin Falls and I don't believe there is a finer community in America. The city government is one of the main reasons that, even under the burden of the 1 percent initiative, Twin Falls is clean, safe and progressive.

Persons opposing our form of government seem to be frustrated because they are unable to fire the city manager. How effective would our government be if a group of irate citizens could remove the city manager? If the city manager pleases everyone, then he must not be doing much.

It's time we stopped looking at the trees and started noticing the forest. We have a great community and, although it isn't perfect, we have the best possible form of city government.

Lower expenses

Editor, Times-News:

Residents of Twin Falls are being told that should we vote to change our city government, we will simply add a mayor at a huge salary. We are also told that we would still need an assistant that would basically serve the purpose of the city manager.

Let's look at what another Idaho city is doing. Idaho Falls, who apparently has never felt the need for the professionalism of a city manager, is a larger city than Twin Falls and faster growing. They elect their mayor and pay him a salary of $26,940 per year. The council consists of six people each being paid $4,800 per year. Idaho Falls does not hire an assistant to the mayor.

In our own city the manager is paid $34,800, the assistant is paid $28,560, six councilmen are paid $3,600 each per year. The mayor is paid $6,000 per year. These positions considered, Idaho Falls has an administrative cost of $55,740. Twin Falls has a cost of $90,960. Difference — $35,220.

Translated into something useful, I'll bet the difference is larger than the library book budget for the year.

ORVILLE KNIGHTON

Look at facts

Editor, Times-News:

With the upcoming special election to change the form of government, the citizens of Twin Falls should be aware of the facts rather than emotional statements made by special interest groups or uninformed people. For the following reasons, let's look at the facts as they apply to the city manager-city council form of government.

The city manager-council form of government is the most effective and most responsible to citizens of Twin Falls. The city manager serves at the pleasure of the council. He serves as the council's chief adviser rather than a dictator of policy. He recruits and hires the best people to work for our government. It is his job to see that the council's programs and policy are carried out.

Our city council is our community's legislative body. Councilmen are elected by you, the citizens of Twin Falls, every two years.

The city manager-council form of government minimizes the danger of machine politics and incompetency in the operation of the city. The city manager is a highly trained competent individual capable of running a highly complex city business. He has to be able to manage the city's nine separate businesses as well as the seven sub-businesses within the nine businesses. He also must know about all of the state and federal programs that are involved with the operation of the city. The city manager knows where and how to receive federal and state funding (your tax dollars) to be used in the community. The work involved in getting these funds and keeping them is enormous. Question: Where can we get such individual? By advertising in the city manager's news letter issued by International City Managers Association, the city council then can choose among many qualified individuals. It would be difficult to find an individual in this city with all of these capabilities that would be willing to run for mayor.

The city manager-council form of government is more responsive to the majority of citizens in Twin Falls. The policy-makers (city council) are usually not politically minded but are there to work for the betterment of the community. They are not as influenced by special interest groups or political favors. They come from a wide range of business, and personal life styles to work in union for the citizens of Twin Falls.

If the citizens of Twin Falls want a voice in government, then they must become involved, attend meetings, run for city council or support a good candidate! We cannot afford to put our city into the hands of one man.

On Nov. 27 vote for the city manager-city council form of government.

Vote no to keep efficient, expert service

By JOE CILEK
Committee for Retaining the City Manager Form of Government

An important characteristic of our democratic society is currently being displayed. It is the truly proper condition that the public express itself by voting to determine the type of administration that can best care for its affairs.

Now is the opportunity to ask that the voters actually take time and interest to exercise not only their right but their responsibility to learn about local government and vote for their best interests. The American system of majority rules can only function with serious participation.

The manager-council form of government requires that a professional administrator serve the elected representatives of the people. The modern administrator for Twin Falls must understand the federal and state human rights regulations, must be trained in labor negotiations, must know how to handle public service labor strikes without jeopardizing public health, safety or welfare. The administrator must be skilled in managing CETA programs, establishing training systems, and developing pay and promotion programs that are so essential in recruiting and retaining a high degree of competence in the performance of public service.

Recognizing these facts of municipal life prompted the voters of Twin Falls, 30 years ago, to progressively step ahead and lead the state with a truly workable method of government. Now is not the time to take the regressive step toward the mayor-council form of public administration.

Twin Falls is one of the few progressive cities of the state where none of the property taxes are committed to pay for bonded indebtedness. This strong financial position has been developed by skillful use of federally funded programs, use of unique purchasing procedures and the balancing of labor and capital costs for best efficiency. This arrangement is the same as you find in many businesses, universities, hospitals and other organizations where a board of directors sets the policies and employs a full-time executive to run the day-to-day activities.

The maintaining of a delicate balance between public safety, public works and public recreation has been accomplished by the professional administrator who satisfies public desire through properly elected representatives. Departmental politics, special favor and competition for public funds do not exist when the best interests of the general public are held paramount to the complaints and demands of a few individuals.

The Code of Ethics of City Management is a pledge that the professional manager shall be dedicated to effective and democratic government; shall affirm the dignity and worth of public service; shall dedicate himself to the highest ideals in honor and integrity; shall submit unbiased facts for elected officials to develop and uphold policy positions; seek no personal favors; and conduct his affairs with fairness and impartiality.

We recommend that the City of Twin Falls vote no on Nov. 27. Don't change our city manager form of government.

Vote yes for a greater voice in government

By ADRIAN ARP
Citizens for an Elected Mayor

On November 27, Twin Falls voters will have the opportunity for the first time in nearly 30 years to change our form of government from the city-manager form to an elected mayor-council form.

There are several advantages for making this change to an elected mayor.

1. The citizens would have a greater voice in government. There is no question that an elected person is more sensitive to the public than one who only needs to polish apples with a few elected councilmen. Even the councilmen are more responsible and responsive when they have to account for their actions and decisions.

The present system allows buck passing to the point that the citizens do not know who is responsible for actions taken. We just get the bill!

2. It is a less expensive form of government. Three members of the present city council recommended the change to the elected mayor-council form so that we might be better able to implement the 1 percent initiative.

3. It will reduce federal and state intervention in our city government. City managers are greatly influenced by the metropolitan government aggregate of political organizations like the Association of Idaho Cities, the International City Management Association, and individuals who are remolding the U.S. into a collectivized nation without the consent, without the vote, and in most instances — without the knowledge of the American citizenry.

Twin Falls is a member of the Association of Idaho Cities. This year's dues are $4,753.00.

4. Separation of powers is distinct with an elected mayor. The elected mayor-council has built in checks and balances which are a vital part of good constitutional government, at any level. The mayor has veto power over the council's decisions but, the council can override the mayor's veto with four votes from the six-member council.

The city manager form of city government has no distinct checks and balances. As a matter of fact, the city manager could attempt to block a city council decision and get fired even though he might be right. Only voters can fire an elected mayor.

Let us elect as mayor a local citizen who has proven he can administer his own financial affairs rather than rely on so-called outside professional help.

What is really needed is common sense leadership in the form of an elected mayor-council form of government.

It is an individual responsibility to take part in this important decision. Register by Nov. 23 if you did not vote in the Nov. 6 election and go to the polls on Nov. 27. You may not get another chance to regain your voice in Twin Falls city government.

Thanksgiving dinner or campaign booster

By United Press International

THANKS, AND VOTE

If Gerald Rafshoon were alert, President and Mrs. Carter's Thanksgiving dinner could be a real campaign boost. They could order their turkey from Minnesota, 10 electoral votes; green beans from California, 45 votes; Massachusetts cranberries, 14 votes; New York apples for the waldorf salad, 41 votes; and Wisconsin whipping cream for the pumpkin pie, 11 votes. But they probably won't. Only the Carters and Amy, 12, will be at Camp David for the feast.

BOARD BARON

The moral of the story — stay out of the high-rent district. Angelo Ripole, 10, didn't, and when he landed on Boardwalk once too often, he lost the U.S. Monopoly finals, held in New York Monday. The winner: Dana Terman, 24, reigning champ. Even though he shows great promise as a tycoon — he entered a local tournament five months ago, then learned the game — Angelo retired to the men's room for a cry. "He hates to lose," his mom says.

THE BIG RING

"Once more you must go into the Ring. Alone. Once more you must face The White Bull that is Paper With No Words on It." Once mbre you can be Ernest Hemingway. Harry's Bar is running its imitation Hemingway contest, and for a page that is quick and clean and true — and mentions Harry's Bar — the winner gets a trip to the bar in Italy or Los Angeles, whichever is farthest. Last year there were 800 entries. Judges include George Plimpton, Ray Bradbury and Jack Hemingway.

ZIG ZAGS

Zagging from tradition. Tom Wilson of Cleveland, creator of the "Ziggy" cartoon strip, is trying to get calendar companies to start the week on Monday instead of Sunday. "Changing it to Mondays is more in keeping with people's life styles," says Wilson. But even though Wilson is vice president of a greeting card company, his colleagues think his week is weak. "I feel," he says, "like I'm attacking mom, apple pie and the church."

DRUM ROLLS

Strange how careers get started. Stix Hooper, of the jazz group the Crusaders, says that when he was in high school in Houston, "I asked my dad to buy me a parade drum — so I could get closer to the cheerleaders." One thing led to another, if not with the girls, at least with the drums, and Hooper has sent copies of his new album to cheerleaders at his old school.

BEHIND THE NAME: The first time Richard Burton kissed Elizabeth Taylor during the filming of "Cleopatra" she burped, and the scene had to be re-shot.

Message by cold cut

WILLIAMSON, W.Va. (UPI) — Dissident school teachers in Mingo County turned to cold cuts to dramatize their grievances and let the local school board know what they think of a letter of criticism the board sent them.

The teachers, members of the West Virginia Education Association, Saturday to send copies of the letter back to the board members and the county schools superintendent as well — each wrapped with a piece of bologna.

Club benefactor wants no girls

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — A woman who gives large amounts of money to the Boys Club doesn't want the club to let girls join.

The benefactor testified at a sex discrimination trial that she will withhold a $200,000 contribution if girls are admitted to the local club.

Mrs. Ruth Mallory, the club's benefactor, said she was raised on a farm and when families moved to town "housework came along with the girls, but the boys' work remained on the farm."

Mrs. Mallory she wanted to fill the gap in the boys' lives by setting up the Boys Club.

Five Santa Cruz youngsters are charging the Boys Club practices illegal sex discrimination by refusing to admit girls as members.

The suit charged that under a state civil rights law no business may discriminate on the basis of sex. The Boys Club is a business, the lawyers argued in Superior Court.

Holiday chicken

When a few gather to share a Thanksgiving

The traditional holiday scene is one of a large group of relatives and friends all clustered around the dinner table feasting on a huge bird with all the accoutrements.

For some of us this custom continues but for many others it has, in recent years, changed markedly. Families are becoming smaller and, in our mobil society, it isn't always possible for friends and loved ones to gather for the holidays.

If you fit into this second category and the gathering at your house this season is to be small, here's an interesting holiday menu with a few surprises from the kitchens of Pepperidge Farm.

The first course is a delightful soup that can be served hot or cold. Curried Broccoli Potage combines sliced leeks and broccoli flowerettes in a curry, chicken and cream broth. This is followed by the entree, a plump roasting chicken with a Banana-Almond Stuffing. The dressing recipe combines Pepperidge Farm Herb Seasoned Stuffing Mix with sauteed celery and onions and chopped bananas, chopped oranges and toasted almonds.

The vegetable is an unusual medley of brussel sprouts, green peas and sliced celery sauteed in butter then topped with chopped chives. And the dessert is a very "untraditional" Mincemeat Marmalade Puff. Orange marmalade, golden raisins and chopped apple are added to mincemeat giving it an intriguing fruity taste. This mixture is topped with lattice strips of Pepperidge Farm frozen puff pastry and baked until the mincemeat bubbles and the puff pastry is golden and crisp.

CURRIED BROCCOLI POTAGE

- 1½ cups sliced leeks
- 1 cup broccoli flowerettes
- 1 small clove garlic, minced
- ¼ teaspoon curry powder
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 cups chicken broth
- 1 egg yolk
- 1 cup heavy cream

In a large saucepan, saute leeks, broccoli, garlic and curry in butter until tender. Process in blender or processor until smooth. Return to saucepan and add broth. Simmer 10 minutes. Blend egg yolk and cream in bowl. Gradually blend about 1 cup broth into egg mixture; return to soup. Cook, stirring occasionally, until heated. Do not boil. Serve either warm or cold. Makes 6 cups.

BANANA-ALMOND STUFFED CHICKEN

- 1 cup chopped celery
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ⅓ cup butter or margarine
- ⅔ cup water
- 2 cups Pepperidge Farm Herb Seasoned Stuffing
- 1 cup chopped bananas
- ¾ cup chopped oranges
- ⅓ cup chopped toasted almonds
- 4 pound roasting chicken
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- Salt and pepper

In a saucepan, saute celery and onion in ⅓ cup butter until tender. Add water; bring to a boil and remove from heat. Stir in stuffing, bananas, oranges and almonds. Stuff into cavity of chicken. Place in roasting pan, dot with butter and season with salt and pepper. Roast at 325° for 25 minutes per pound basting occasionally. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

HOLIDAY BRUSSEL SPROUTS

- 1 pint or 1 package (10 ounces) frozen brussel sprouts
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen green peas
- 1 cup thickly sliced celery
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 tablespoon chives

Cook brussel sprouts and peas until tender; drain. In a saucepan, cook celery in butter until tender crisp. Add vegetables and chives. Toss to blend and heat. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

MINCEMEAT MARMALADE PUFF

- 1 sheet Pepperidge Farm Frozen "Bake It Fresh" Puff Pastry
- 1 jar (28 ounces) mincemeat
- 2 cups finely chopped unpared apple
- 1 cup golden raisins
- ½ cup orange marmalade

Defrost pastry according to package directions. Meanwhile, combine remaining ingredients in a 1½-quart shallow baking dish. On a lightly floured board, cut pastry into 1 inch strips. Place on filling in lattice fashion and press ends to edge of dish to seal. Bake in preheated 425° oven for 25 minutes or until pastry is golden and filling is hot. Makes 6 servings.

For many people, holiday gatherings this year will be small. Beginning with a curried broccoli soup, this menu for four includes a roast chicken stuffed with banana-almond dressing, Holiday Brussel Sprouts and an easy but tantalizing Mincemeat Marmalade Puff.

Turkey roasting tips; 10 ways to stuff; good gravy made easy

Times-News writer

It appears that the runaway success of almost everyone's dinner tomorrow will be turkey. The markets have not been taken by surprise. At this bird-writing session, there are still a few turkeys left for last-minute shoppers. They will be available fresh, thawed frozen and frozen.

Are you planning to cook your turkey in such a way that your eaters will be perfectly satisfied to wait until a year from now for another November inevitable? Or, are you fixing yours using special secrets for tenderness and juiciness so your eaters are anxious for more such feasting at Christmas dinner next month?

Did you know that turkey is becoming our best round-the-year money-saving protein bargain? Doesn't it then make sense to take time now to make sure you roast turkey to its perfection?

Here are a few thawing and roasting tricks you already may use, plus 10 ways to stuff your turkey. These stuffing recipes were sent your way last year, but we're repeating them because there have been so many requests for them. Besides the stuffing ideas, we're giving you a good, basic gravy recipe.

1. Do not thaw your frozen turkey at room temperature. Leave it in its bag and do one of the following thawing methods: (a) put frozen turkey on a tray in refrigerator 24 hours for each 5 pounds of dressed weight; or (b) cover with cold water and change the water often — every one-half hour for each pound of frozen bird. This water method is the fastest method.

2. Before stuffing the turkey, rinse it in cold water and pat dry. Put turkey breast down in deep bowl. Rub cavity with salt. Spoon stuffing into body cavity and shake bird to settle dressing. Make sure you do not pack the stuffing. Put skewers across opening and pull skin closed around skewers with string. Tie drumsticks securely to tail. Rub skin thoroughly with vegetable oil or shortening.

3. To roast, put stuffed bird on a rack in shallow pan with breast down. If bird is too heavy to handle and turn, place breast up and leave in this position throughout the roasting. Lay fat-moistened cheese cloth — large enough to cover sides — over top of turkey. When turkey is started breast down, turn breast up the last hour of roasting. Breast-down method, covered entirely with a paper bag is our favorite way for roasting birds.

Roast turkey at even, low temperature for tenderest, juiciest results.

To determine how long to cook your turkey, use the chart below. It gives the approximate time required to cook chilled turkeys of various weights. Unstuffed turkeys require approximately 5 minutes per pound less time.

Differences in individual birds may necessitate increasing or decreasing cooking time slightly.

TIMETABLE

Ready-to-Cook Weight * (pounds)	Oven Temperature	Total Cooking Time (hours)
8 to 12	325°F.	4 to 4½
12 to 16	300°F.	4½ to 5
16 to 20	300°F.	5 to 5½
20 to 24	300°F.	5½ to 6

300°D. is a very slow oven; 325°F is a slow oven

* If you buy a dressed turkey subtract 5 pounds for heavy weight, 3 pounds for medium weight and 2 pounds for light-weight turkey to obtain the approximate ready-to-cook weight.

When dinner is set for a definite hour, wise homemakers start the bird 30 or 40 minutes ahead of schedule to avoid delay should the turkey take longer to cook than estimated. This also allows time to make gravy, remove trussing cords and arrange the bird attractively on the platter.

Following are 10 ideas for stuffing a bird for those of you who don't know what to do with yours yet. Weigh your bird, pick your stuffing and adjust your chosen recipe ingredient measurements to suit the weight of your bird. Figure on ½ cup of stuffing for each pound of bird.

Stuffing expands as it cooks, so do not pack it too firmly inside the bird. If you have extra filling, put it in the neck cavity or put it in a greased dish or wrap it in foil and bake it the last hour alongside your bird.

BASIC BREAD STUFFING
(Makes 4 cups)

- 4 cups dry bread cubes or largely crumbled bread (use mixture of white and whole grain)
- ½ cup margarine or butter, melted
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons grated onion
- chicken or beef broth to moisten slightly

In large mixing bowl, toss together lightly the bread crumbs, melted margarine or butter, salt, pepper and grated onion. When mixed, moisten slightly with broth. Fill bird cavity with stuffing mixture. Remember, stuffing expands as it cooks, so do not pack it too firmly inside the bird.

HERBED BREAD STUFFING

- 4 cups basic bread stuffing
- ¼ teaspoon sage, poultry seasoning or ground celery seed
- 2 tablespoons minced parsley
- ½ teaspoon crushed dried sweet basil or tarragon (don't use them together because you lose the flavor of each)

Make up basic bread stuffing and toss in the sage, poultry seasoning or ground celery seed, minced parsley, basil or tarragon. Fill, truss and roast bird.

SMOKED OYSTER STUFFING

- 4 cups basic bread stuffing
- 6 or 8 drained canned smoked oysters, broken into pieces
- 1 teaspoon ground cardamom
- 1 teaspoon ground celery seed
- 3 tablespoons minced fresh celery.

Make up basic bread stuffing and toss in oysters, cardamom, ground celery seed and minced celery. Fill, truss and roast bird.

CRANBERRY STUFFING

- 4 cups basic bread stuffing
- 1 cup raw cranberries
- 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 pinches ground ginger

Make up basic bread stuffing. Chop fresh cranberries. In saucepan, melt margarine or butter; add chopped cranberries and cook 5 minutes, stirring. Stir in sugar and ginger. Toss cranberry mixture with basic bread stuffing. Fill, truss and roast the bird.

SAUSAGE STUFFING

- 4 cups basic bread stuffing
- 1 cup browned sausage meat
- ½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
- ¼ cup finely minced celery

Make up basic bread stuffing. Toss with browned sausage, poultry seasoning and minced celery. Fill, truss and roast the bird.

APPLE-CINNAMON STUFFING

- 1 cup chicken broth
- ½ cup chopped celery
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 4 tablespoons margarine or butter
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 4 cups dry, whole wheat bread cubes
- 2 medium apples, pared, cored and finely chopped
- ½ cup chopped pecans or walnuts
- 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
- ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper

In saucepan, combine broth, celery, onion, margarine or butter and salt; cover, bring to a boil and simmer 5 minutes, or until vegetables are tender. In large bowl, combine bread cubes, apples, nuts and seasonings. Pour broth mixture on top and toss to moisten. Stuff, truss and roast bird.

SAUERKRAUT STUFFING
(Makes about 5 cups)

- 4 cups chopped, drained sauerkraut
- 1 clove garlic, peeled and mashed
- ¼ cup grated onion
- 1 tart apple, peeled, cored and chopped
- 2 tablespoons honey
- ¼ cup currants or diced raisins
- ⅛ teaspoon powdered thyme
- 1 cup drained and minced canned water chestnuts

In large bowl, toss all ingredients together. Stuff, truss and roast the bird.

MASHED POTATO STUFFING
(Makes about 6 cups)

- ¼ cup margarine or butter
- ½ cup finely minced onion
- ½ cup finely minced celery
- pinch oregano
- 2 eggs
- 4 cups soft bread crumbs
- 1½ cups mashed potatoes

In saucepan, melt margarine or butter. Add and cook until slightly browned, the onion and celery; stir in chopped parsley and oregano. In mixing bowl, beat the eggs with the milk; pour mixture over the bread crumbs. Then mix egg-bread mixture with mashed potatoes and sauteed vegetables. Stuff, truss and roast bird.

RICE STUFFING
(Makes about 5 cup)

- 5 slices bacon, cut into tiny pieces with sharp knife or scissors
- 1 small onion, peeled and finely minced
- 3 stalks finely chopped celery
- 4 cups rice that has been cooked in chicken broth instead of water with a pinch of saffron added to water
- 1 cup dry coarse bread crumbs
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon white pepper
- ⅛ teaspoon sage or cardamom
- ½ cup milk
- ½ cup cream

In saucepan, cook bacon until fat is rendered; add onion and celery and brown slightly. In bowl mix rice with onion mixture, bread crumbs, salt, pepper, sage or cardamom, milk and cream. Stuff, truss and roast bird.

WILD RICE AND MUSHROOM
(Makes about 3 cups)

- 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
- ¾ pound chopped fresh mushrooms
- 1 small onion, peeled & minced
- 1 medium-sized fresh carrot, peeled and grated
- 1 cup cooked wild rice which has been cooked in chicken broth (may substitute 2 cups canned cooked wild rice but mix in 2 teaspoons concentrated chicken broth mix made with dehydrated mix)
- salt, pepper, thyme

In saucepan, heat margarine or butter, add mushrooms, onion and carrot; cover and steam about 5 minutes, or until mushrooms are cooked, onion and carrots are tender. In bowl, mix together the vegetable mixture, wild rice and season to taste with salt and pepper. Stir in a pinch of thyme. Fill, truss and roast bird.

HOW TO MAKE GOOD GRAVY

Ingredients	Amount: 2 cups	Amount: 4 cups
Fat	3 tablespoons	6 tablespoons
Flour	3 tablespoons	6 tablespoons
Liquid — broth, milk or water	2 cups	4 cups

When your bird is roasted, remove it to a warm platter and keep it warm. Allow ¼ cup gravy for each person's serving(s). Pour drippings (the fat and meat juice in pan) into a bowl leaving all the brown drippings in the pan. Let the fat rise to the top of the drippings. Using baster, suck drippings from bottom of bowl and measure out amount needed for gravy back into the roasting pan. Set roasting pan with fat and drippings over a very low heat. Add flour. Blend fat and flour and cook until frothy, stirring constantly. If desired, brown the fat and flour a bit to give it more color and flavor. Add, cool or lukewarm (not hot) liquid all at once. Cook stirring constantly until evenly thickened. If darker gravy is desired, stir in a few drops Kitchen Bouquet. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS: Citrus is coming in now and prices seem about the same as this time last year. Don't be discouraged if the skins are not photogenic the insides are superb. Coffee prices will continue to yoyo. They seem to be going up again. Baking goods are a bit cheaper this year and there doesn't seem to be any shortage in sight. Turkey is best protein buy. You might freeze a few if you have the freezer space.

There's more use in those big orange globes than pumpkin pie

RENO, Nev. — There's more to pumpkin than pumpkin pie.

Early English settler discovered they could brew beer out of pumpkin, parsnips and walnut tree chips, and since then Yankee chefs have concocted everything from pumpkin pudding to delicious pumpkin bread.

Historians aren't certain if the Pilgrims enjoyed pumpkin at the first Thanksgiving feast in 1621, but if they did, it wasn't in the form of pumpkin pie because the only pies known to them were meat pies.

The big orange globes from the squash family originated in the Americas, probably the tropics of South America. The vegetable was introduced to the Pilgrims by the Indian Squanto, who taught the first settlers to plant pumpkins between corn "hills." Spreading pumpkin vines helped keep the weeds under control.

Several varieties of pumpkins are grown throughout the U.S., including Japanese Pie, Kentucky Field, Green Striped and Sweet Cheese, which is the variety used most frequently for canned pumpkins.

Although it may have been absent in the beginning, pumpkin pie has become a traditional Thanksgiving dish, along with turkey and cranberry sauce.

More than 750 pounds of pumpkin will be used for pies on Thanksgiving Day for five of the restaurants at Harrah's Tahoe. Chefs at the 540-room hotel/casino will also be roasting more than a ton of turkeys — 3,750 pounds to be exact — and simmering 500 pounds of cranberries for cranberry sauce.

Horst Manderschied, assistant chef at Harrah's, offers the following untraditional recipes for pumpkin, along with that traditional standby, Colonial Pumpkin Pie:

COLONIAL PUMPKIN PIE

- 2 cups mashed cooked pumpkin or one 16 ounce can of pumpkin
- 3/4 cup of sugar
- 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
- 3/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
- 3 slightly beaten eggs
- 1/2 cup each whipping cream and milk
- 1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell

Combine pumpkin, sugar, spices and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Blend in eggs, cream and milk. Pour into pastry shell. Bake at 400° until a knife inserted off-center comes out clean, 40 to 45 minutes (filling may crack). Also, 1 cup of light cream may be substituted for whipping cream and milk.)

PUMPKIN BREAD

- 3 1/4 to 3 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- 1/4 teaspoon each ground ginger, nutmeg and cloves
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/4 cup packed brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 cup mashed pumpkin
- 3/4 cup raisins

In large mixing bowl, thoroughly combine 1 1/2 cups of the flour, yeast and spices. In saucepan heat milk, brown sugar, butter and salt just until warm (115 to 120 degrees) stirring constantly. Add to dry mixture in mixing bowl, add pumpkin. Beat at low speed of electric mixer for 1/2 minute, scraping sides of bowl constantly. Beat 3 minutes at high speed. By hand, stir in raisins and enough of the remaining flour to make a moderately stiff dough. Turn out onto floured surface and knead until smooth and elastic (5 to 8 minutes). Shape into ball. Place in lightly greased bowl, turning once. Cover and let rise in warm place until it doubles in size (about 1 hour). Punch down, cover and let rest for 10 minutes. Shape into a loaf; place in greased 8 1/2 x 4 1/2 x 2 1/2 inch loaf pan. Cover, let rise until double (about 30 minutes). Bake at 375 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes. Remove from pan, cool.

PUMPKIN-CORNED BEEF DINNER

In 7 1/2 quart dutch oven barely cover one 3 to 4 pound corned beef brisket with water. Add 1/2 cup chopped onions, 2 cloves garlic, minced; 2 bay leaves; 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme, crushed; 1/2 teaspoon whole black pepper. Simmer, covered until the meat is almost tender, about 2 1/2 hours. Skim off fat. Add 6 medium sized potatoes, peeled; and 2 pounds pumpkin, cut into 6 portions. Cover, cook until vegetables are tender, 30 to 35 minutes. Remove meat and vegetables to platter; keep warm. Strain liquid, reserving 1 1/2 cups. Blend 1/2 cup cold water slowly into 1/4 cup all-purpose flour. Add to cooking liquid. Cook and stir until thick and bubbly. Serve over meat and vegetables. Serves 6.

PUMPKIN RICE PUDDING

- 1 16 ounce can pumpkin
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon each salt and ground ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
- 2 slightly beaten eggs
- 1 13 ounce can evaporated milk
- 2/3 cup uncooked quick-cooking rice
- 1/2 cup raisins

Combine pumpkin, sugar, cinnamon, salt, ginger and cloves. Add eggs. Stir in milk. Stir in rice and raisins. Pour into 1 1/2 quart casserole. Place in shallow pan on oven rack; pour hot water around casserole into pan to depth of 1 inch. Bake at 350 degrees for about 15 minutes; stir until well combined. Bake until a knife inserted off-center comes out clean, 50 to 60 minutes more. (Or spoon into six to eight 5 ounce custard cups; place in pan. Fill pan with hot water to depth of 1 inch. Bake at 350 degrees until a knife inserted off center comes out clean, 25 to 30 minutes.) Makes 6 to 8 servings.

STEAMED PUMPKIN PUDDING

- 6 tablespoons butter
- 3/4 cup packed brown sugar
- 1/4 cup granulated sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon each salt, baking soda, ground cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg
- 3/4 cup mashed cooked pumpkin or canned pumpkin
- 1/2 cup each buttermilk and chopped walnuts

Cream butter and sugar until light. Beat in eggs. Stir together flour, salt, soda, cinnamon, ginger and nutmeg. Mix pumpkin and buttermilk, add to creamed mixture alternately with dry ingredients, mixing well after each addition. Fold in nuts. Spoon into greased and floured 6 1/2 cup ring mold. Cover tightly with foil. Bake at 350° for an hour. Let stand 10 minutes. Unmold. Serve with whipped cream, if desired.

Two favorite desserts

When choosing a Thanksgiving dessert this year, consider one that combines two dessert favorites, pumpkin pie and cheesecake.

"Pumpkin-cheese cakepie" featured in the November issue of Sunset Magazine has "double appeal," according to editors.

The tangy cream cheese, pumpkin and spices are beaten together then baked in a ginger cooky crust. A satiny sour cream topping is added after it cools.

To prepare, melt 6 tablespoons butter or margarine, then blend with 2 cups finely crushed ginger cookies. Press crumbs halfway up the sides and over the bottom of an ungreased 9- or 10-inch cheesecake pan (one with removable bottom or spring-release sides) to form a crust. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 10-12 minutes or until edges are well browned; cool.

Using an electric mixer, beat until smooth 2 packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese (at room temperature). Add 1 cup each canned pumpkin and light or dark brown sugar (firmly packed); beat 3-5 minutes at medium speed until light and fluffy. Then beat in 1/4 cup flour; 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla; 1 teaspoon each of ground cinnamon, ground ginger and ground allspice; 1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg; and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Add 3/4 cup milk and 4 eggs (slightly beaten) and beat just until blended.

Pour into cooled crust and bake in a 350 degree oven for 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 hours, or until a knife comes out clean when inserted into a cake halfway between the center and the edge. Turn the oven off, set the door slightly ajar, and leave the cheesecake in the oven for 1 hour; then remove to a wire rack to cool at least 2 hours.

When cake is cool, stir together 1 cup of sour cream, 2 tablespoons sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla; spread evenly over top. Serve at room temperature or chilled. Makes 10 or 12 servings.

Dear Abby

She feels guilt for hatred of father-in-law

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a great husband. Not perfect, but close enough. My problem is his father.

About four years ago he told me he wanted to go to bed with me, and had felt that way for a long time. I was insulted and sickened by the suggestion, and told him so. He has a lovely wife. He's not senile, and I did nothing to provoke it.

At first I hated him, then my hate turned to feeling absolutely nothing toward him.

I bitterly resent the love and respect this vile man receives from his family. I am constantly hearing what a "wonderful" person he is, and it galls me to keep silent. But I must, of course. I also resent the adoration my husband has for his father when, in fact, his father has betrayed him in the worst of all betrayals.

A few months ago my father-in-law underwent emergency surgery, and the family was informed that he has six months at the most to live. When I heard the news, I am ashamed to admit that I secretly rejoiced. His death will be the end of my play-acting, and I look forward to it with no reservations.

Abby, do you think I am going to be in big trouble with God for feeling this way? I have come to terms with the insult to myself, but the betrayal of a good son by his father is something I cannot forgive.

Will God punish me for my feelings? Or might He find this sinful man as repugnant as I, and understand my feelings?

— NO CITY OR STATE, PLEASE

DEAR NO CITY: Since you are obviously a God-fearing woman who feels guilt and the fear of punishment for your thoughts, ask God's forgiveness through prayer.

I can't tell you how God will judge you but, in the future, leave the business of judging your fellowman to the Lord. That's His work.

DEAR ABBY: How long should a hostess wait for a late dinner guest? My husband and I were invited to a dinner party for 7 p.m. We arrived promptly at 7, and by 7:15 all the other guests were there except one couple. The cocktail hour continued until the tardy couple came steaming in, full of apologies, at 8:45!

By that time I had a hunger headache and my husband had exceeded his quota of cocktails. Need I tell you what kind of an evening we had?

What is the limit on holding up a dinner for latecomers? Thanks for printing this.

— HAD IT IN HOUGHTON, MICH.

DEAR HAD IT: Fifteen minutes is long enough to hold up a scheduled meal for tardy guests.

George Washington is said to have set an intelligent precedent. He instructed his cook to inquire not, "Have the GUESTS arrived?" But, "Has the HOUR arrived?"

DEAR ABBY: With every sorrow or setback there is a bit of humor. Such was the case when I was recently hospitalized.

One of my nurses was a little Chinese doll who couldn't have weighed more than 80 pounds. She was 22, married and had two children.

After she had given me my bath and massage with her usual care and kindness, I winked at her to show my appreciation. I then asked her, "Can you wink with one eye?"

She answered, "No can wink with one eye. Can wink with TWO eyes." Then I asked her if she knew what a wink meant. She bent down and whispered into my ear, "Yes. That means, 'nobody home; c'mon in.'"

She knew, of course, that I was 81.

Swafford wins award

TWIN FALLS — This year's Youth Appreciation Award, sponsored by the Optimist Club, was presented to Steven Swafford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lindon Swafford of Twin Falls.

Steven is the sophomore class president at Twin Falls High School and past student body president of Robert Stuart Junior High School. He has been actively involved with Inter Act Club, High-Y (sponsored by the YFCA), Bowladrome traveling team, president of the Bruin Prep Bowling League, Cross Country Team at Twin Falls High School as well as the Track Team, just to name a few. Steve is almost an "A" student.

The award was presented to Steve during Youth Appreciation Week which focuses on the positive acts of young people. Most young people are well informed, concerned, willing and interested in becoming involved in efforts to improve our society.

Youth Appreciation Week is a vehicle through which all adults and youth may work together for the good of all. The vitality and spirit of youth needs the wisdom and experience of adults as support in their efforts toward the successful achievement of their goals. It follows that adults have a responsibility to assist youth through the transitional stage toward adulthood.

The Optimist Club encourages the community to support the young people as they attempt to fulfill roles as responsible citizens.

Horoscope

Sagittarians should go for personal goals in direct style, get busy

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day is by far the best time to go after and achieve your most cherished desires. Later some delays and obstacles could block your advance in new activities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan how to gain your finest wishes and how to hurdle possible blockages in your path of progress. Be careful crossing streets.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen to what financial experts have to suggest and follow their ideas for best results. Come to a better understanding with mate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be more willing to carry through with ideas of associates and gain more benefits. Be more active and accomplish more.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get busy now instead or running off on some worthless activity. Evening is fine for family happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure money matters are well handled at this time. Make long-range plans that could give you added security in the future.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Ideal time to please family members so there will be more harmony at home. Make sure your wardrobe is in fine condition.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take steps to improve regular routines. Figure out the most practical way to gain your aims. Be logical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can handle monetary matters very well now if you don't waste time. Find a better way to please the one you love.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Go after personal goals in a most direct fashion, then get busy at regular routines. Handle money matters wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Change your attitude and reach a better understanding with associates. Use extreme care in motion today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have very good judgment in the morning, so make important decisions at this time. Evening is fine for relaxing.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Discuss an important matter with higher-ups and get the backing you need. Take no risks with your reputation at this time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be successful in life because of the ability to see everything with an enlarged focus. Give as comprehensive an education as you can for best results. Be sure to give ethical training early in life.

What's what

Newsmen found victims of extraordinary anxiety

Extraordinary anxiety is more frequently found in newspaper editors and writers than in any other group of professionals. Or so contends a University of Illinois researcher. This not the first such set of findings to indicate the word merchants worry overmuch. Repeated studies over the years have come to the same conclusion. None of them yet, however, has explained the why of the matter.

Maybe you've read about women of a certain age who fear growing older. They've been known to cover their mirrors. England's Queen Elizabeth I was one of these. She refused to look in a mirror during the last 20 years of her life.

A Mickey Mantle baseball card was worth a penny in 1952. Recently, one of same sold for $608.

OLD CLUB

Q. What sort of association is "The Order of the Good Times"?

A. The oldest social club in America, that one. Originated in Nova Scotia in 1606. And you are automatically a member, if you've lived in N. S. for seven days or longer. No dues, no fees, no meetings.

Item 733C in our Love and War man's file is that observation by Brahms: "When the one man loves the one woman and the one woman loves the one man, the very angels leave heaven and come and sit in that house and sing for joy." Heaven's handiwork, true love. Or so thought Brahms. Studies of the matter continue.

A shop called Hog Wild in Boston's renowned marketplace Faneuil Hall sells only items related in some way to pigs. Among the fastest movers from its shelves are jars of male chauvinist soap.

KISSES

Game show host Richard Dawson kisses the women who appear on "Family Feud"—about 80 times a week. Question arose as to whether he was overdoing it. He appealed to his audience. Should he dispense with all this pucker-power play? Mail response ran about 40 to one in favor of his kissing routine.

Am asked as to how many murderers in this country get away with it. Statistics on that one are a little hard to come by, understandably. But an expert named Fredric Wertham contends about half the killers don't get caught.

Iran crisis jolts Wall Street

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK — Wall Street, jolted by the escalating Iranian crisis that threatens 49 American hostages' lives and the stability of the U.S. dollar, sent the stock market sharply lower Tuesday in fairly active trading.

At the same time, the State Department stunned many investors when it reported a "disturbance" of some kind in Saudi Arabia's holy city of Mecca, where a mosque apparently was taken over. Saudi communications were blacked out.

The market began to cave in around midday when the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, whose Moslem students released 13 American hostages, threatened to try the remaining hostages as spies unless the United States returned Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

As a result, the Dow Jones industrial average, which had been ahead about a point in the morning, dropped 6.05 points to 809.22 after surrendering 0.43 point Monday.

The New York Stock Exchange index lost 0.27 to 59.09 and the price of a share was shed 14 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index dropped 0.54 to 103.69. Declines topped advances, 885 to 581, among the 1,882 issues traded.

Big Board volume totaled 35,200,000 shares, compared with 33,090,000 traded Monday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 40,136,370 shares, compared with 37,168,480 Monday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 0.43 to 220.63 and the price of a share added 3 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ composite OTC index lost 0.47 to 139.51.

Occidental Petroleum, a 1½-point winner Monday, was the most active issue, off ⅝ to 27⅞. A company spokesman said Monday the stock's strength was tied to recommendations by several analysts and to the firm's large oil and coal reserves.

Ford Motor Co., which said last week it expects to report a $1 billion loss from North American operations this year and next, was the second most active issue, off 2⅜ to 30⅝. Ford of Canada dropped 3¼ to 51 on the Amex after the company omitted its quarterly dividend payout.

General Motors, the fourth most active NYSE issue, dropped 1⅞ to 50⅛. GM's November car sales, like those of other producers, have been sharply lower than a year ago.

IBM was the third most active NYSE issue, off ¼ to 61⅝. Published reports said some analysts believe the computer giant could have a surprisingly good fourth quarter. In another matter, the company said it had sold F.W. Woolworth 8,000 point-of-sale terminals.

R.H. Macy climbed 3¼ to 46¾ after the company reported first-quarter earnings of $2.16 a share versus $1.26 a year ago.

Halliburton dropped 1⅞ to 78⅛ after the company revealed it faces a $37 million writeoff on Iranian assets.

Fotomat, which rose 1⅛ points Monday, added ⅜ to 7¼. The company has gone national with a movie rental operation that Fotomat had tested in Western states the past six months.

On the Amex, declines topped advances, 321 to 244, among the 792 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 4,523,800 shares, compared with 4,584,500 Monday.

Dome Petroleum was the most active Amex issue, up ¼ to 42⅛. Aegis followed, up ¼ to 1¼. Page Petroleum was third, off ⅛ to 19¼.

American Garden Products gained 3½ to 18⅛ after Amfac agreed to acquire the firm on a share-for-share basis. Amfac stock eased ⅝ to 21¾ on the NYSE.

Circle K Corp. gained 2 to 22¾ after the company reported higher second-quarter earnings, raised its dividend payout to 30 cents a share from 27½ cents, and declared a 2-to-1 stock split.

In the OTC market, declines topped advances, 465 to 387, among the 2,599 issues traded. Volume totaled 14,236,900 shares, compared with 13,290,100 Monday.

Dollar closes stronger despite threats

By United Press International

The U.S. dollar closed stronger Tuesday on all European markets except Paris despite new Iranian threats to discard it as payment for oil.

A dealer said foreign exchange and bullion markets "were in a state of suspended animation" awaiting clarification of the Iranian crisis.

Gold fell, closing in London at $388.50 an ounce, down from $390.50 at Monday's close. In Zurich it closed at $388, down from Monday's close of $390. In New York, where gold traded as high as $394 at one point, it sold off at the close to $391 an ounce.

"It's pretty much of a rumor market," said Marc Berkowitz, trader for James Sinclair Co. "Gold goes up and down in a narrow range on each new pronouncement from Iran."

"The markets are in a state of suspended animation and it's a unique experience," Berkowitz said. "We're used to prices showing an instant reaction to political and economic crises. Traders don't quite know how to deal with Iran, where we're not dealing with rational forces."

An announcement by the government-owned Pars News Agency that the Iranian Central Bank had asked approval to stop accepting payments for Iranian oil in dollars caused a brief flurry of selling but the dollar recovered quickly. The agency later killed the story.

For one thing, the consensus is that countries with strong currencies wouldn't welcome an influx of Iranian oil surplus.

The economies of major U.S. trading partners all are dependent on exports; any sharp appreciation of their currencies would drive up the price of those exports.

Also, most industrialized countries are having problems with domestic inflation. A shift of oil dollars into strong currencies would complicate these efforts and indeed the dollar's role as an international reserve currency has contributed mightily to its expansion and to the U.S. inflation rate.

In Frankfurt the dollar rose to 1.7635 marks from 1.7605 at Monday's close; in Zurich to 1.64275 Swiss francs from 1.63675; in Brussels to 29.065 Belgian francs from 29.05; in Amsterdam to 1.97 guilders from 1.9690 and in Milan to 825.20 lire from 823.45.

In London the pound fell to $2.1680 from $2.1820 at Monday's close. The British pound has risen sharply, both on speculation that OPEC might decide on a dollar-pound mechanism for oil payments and because British interest rates at at record levels.

In Paris, the dollar eased to 4.1350 from 4.13725 at Monday's close.

The dollar also lost ground in Tokyo, where it closed Tuesday at 245.70 yen, down from 246.30 Monday.

The Canadian dollar surged to .8515 U.S. cents from .8496 Monday.

Pravda wants better made goods

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Communist Party daily Pravda called Tuesday for a shift of emphasis in industries producing consumer goods from quantity to quality.

"Footwear and clothing of unprepossessing type and outdated fashions continue to roll off the production lines of a whole series of factories and there is no demand for them," Pravda said in a front-page editorial.

"Poor quality is usually caused by poor use of technology, ignorance of the recommendations of designers and poor raw materials.

"The Ministry of Light Industry of the U.S.S.R. and the staffs of some other sectors, in the race for high production indices, still pay only little attention to perfecting the structure of consumer items and do not pay anything like enough attention to the opinions of the consumers.

"As a result, goods pile up without being sold and each year they have to be marked down by many millions of rubles," the official party newspaper said.

Nestle acquiring Beech-Nut Corp.

VEVEY, Switzerland (UPI) — Nestle announced Tuesday that it is buying the Beech-Nut Corp. of Fort Washinngton, Pa., one of the major U.S. baby food manufacturers.

Nestle said the acquisition was being made through one of its financial holding companies in the United States. It did not disclose the purchase price.

Beech-Nut will continue its activities as an independent entity, Nestle said.

Grain futures

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat and soybeans were irregularly higher, corn higher and oats fractionally higher at the close Tuesday on the CHICAGO Board of Trade.

Wheat was up 2 to 6¼ cents; corn up 2¼ to 3; oats unchanged to up ¼; and soybeans up 1 to 6¼ cents.

Although the grain markets opened mixed, they showed a rally shortly after reports from Iran that the Ayatollah Kohmeini considered U.S. hostages spies. Speculative buying and local short covering followed the reports, although some traders said pre-holiday trade also was an significant factor.

Local short covering and light country movement pressured corn to a higher close and soybeans to a irregularly higher close. The largest soybean gains were in nearby contracts, with November closing up 6¼.

An increased commercial demand in wheat pressured the market to an irregularly higher close.

The outside markets closed higher.

© Field Enterprises, Inc.

Imagine you receive a letter from your local banker, informing you that the bank had mistakenly overcharged you for a loan and thereby had violated the Truth-in-Lending law. Thus enclosed, writes the banker, you will find a refund check.

Would such an admission shake your confidence in the bank, encouraging you to take your business elsewhere?

It would, argues the American Bankers Association, the banking industry's leading trade group. Such a confession, the ABA charges in a suit against federal bank regulatory agencies, would "undermine public confidence in the banks and banking system . . . to the great and lasting detriment and irreparable injury to the banks' assets, income and profits."

So, the ABA has gone to the courts to prevent the federal agencies which regulate banks from ordering them to reimburse consumers for Truth-in-Lending law violations.

Truth-in-Lending became law a full 10 years ago in 1969. It requires creditors to tell borrowers before they take out loans the amount of the finance charges and annual percentage rate which they will have to pay.

But most of the federal regulatory agencies did not even start to check for compliance with this vital consumer protection law until 1977. No one truly knows the extent to which financial institutions have failed to make such disclosures or to make them properly during these 10 years.

Federally chartered banks alone might have to reimburse consumers between $30 and $100 million, the Comptroller of the Currency, one of the three federal agencies that regulate banking, estimated after sending out a force of specially trained consumer examiners.

A long series of delays followed this initial exam, as the various agencies individually and collectively — tried to devise uniform guidelines for enforcing the law and ordering refunds.

"There was gross disparity in the attitudes of the various regulatory agencies," according to an important staff aide on the Senate Banking Consumer Affairs subcommittee. Some took a strict line, ordering institutions repeatedly found to have violated the law to go back as far as 1974 to identify consumers who had been overcharged. Others were more lenient, found far fewer cases of willful violations.

This past August, the ABA went to court, contending the agencies did not have the power to order banks to make reimbursements. Almost at once, the agencies suspended their enforcement guidelines.

Meanwhile, on Capitol Hill, the Senate passed a bill approving interest-bearing checking accounts. Among the amendments attached to this legislation is one which would effectively prevent consumers from being reimbursed for Truth-in-Lending law violations that were roughly more than one year old.

Ellen Broadman, counsel for Consumers Union, the non-profit publisher of Consumer Reports magazine, finds this measure nothing less than "scandalous."

"Consumers who have been overcharged aren't going to be reimbursed," she told my associate, Brooke Shearer. "They shouldn't be made to suffer just because the federal agencies have failed to enforce the law."

What can you do about all this?

First, with this report you are at least aware that your bank, inadvertently or not, may have violated the Truth-in-Lending law and may have overcharged you.

Second, depending on your own relations with your local bank and how much you have been borrowing in recent years, you now have the knowledge you need to ask intelligent questions about your charges and to seek your bank's reassurances or whatever.

Third, if you agree with the banks' position, as reflected in the stand of the ABA, so be it. Let your bank know it has your confidence and support. If you do not agree and instead you want the federal bank regulatory agencies to regain their aggressiveness in policing the banks' charges on loans and in seeking reimbursements if violations are found, you can let the agencies know they have your confidence and support. Either way, you have a voice; use it.

And fourth, you can make your position known on the measure that would eliminate bank reimbursements to borrowers for Truth-in-Lending violations after so short a span as one year. If you think, as Broadman does, that this is "scandalous," tell your representatives in Washington before it is too late.

Latest Wave Of Smoker Research: Smokers acclaim low tar MERIT as taste alternative to high tar smoking.

96% Acclaim Switch To Merit!

MERIT smokers rate low tar MERIT satisfying taste alternative to high tar brands.

New national smoker study results prove it.

Proof: The overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers polled feel they didn't sacrifice taste in switching from high tar cigarettes.

Proof: 96% of MERIT smokers don't miss former high tar brands.

Proof: 9 out of 10 enjoy smoking as much since switching to MERIT, are glad they switched, and report MERIT is the best tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Smokers report the taste of low tar MERIT matches that of high tar cigarettes.

New taste tests with thousands of smokers prove it.

Proof: A significant majority of smokers rate MERIT taste as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar!

Proof: Of the 95% stating a preference, 3 out of 4 smokers chose the MERIT low tar/good taste combination over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed.

You've read the results. The conclusion is clearer than ever: MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar.

A combination that's attracting more and more smokers every day and—more importantly—satisfying them long term.

Evans wants strong evidence that INEL waste not a hazard

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans said today it will take "strong evidence" to convince him that injection of radioactive waste at the Idaho Nuclear Engineering Laboratory in eastern Idaho will not have a harmful effect on the Snake River aquifer.

Evans said he was not trying to prejudice the work of his task force studying the situation and he was will willing to wait until he saw the group's final report.

He added, however, he was still "concerned and skeptical" over the radioactive waste disposal practices at the facility near Idaho Falls.

Evans said "it's going to take some strong evidence to convince me that injecting liquid radioactive material into the ground above the Snake River aquifer presents no immediate or far-reaching dangers to public health."

The governor appointed the task force last week after he learned of a government report that showed that billions of gallons of liquid radioactive waste and cancer-causing agents had been dumped into the aquifer.

Evans said he has had "strong personal feelings again the injector wells from the time I learned of this disposal method last week," adding he wanted to have a panel of experts review the entire disposal methods and monitoring system before arriving at any final conclusions.

"The people of Idaho justifiably become very upset over any kind of radioactive material that could affect their lives through water, the air, food or what have you," Evans said. "They might not know all the technical jargon about low-level or high-level waste or the half-life of strontium, but they do know they are afraid of radioactive pollution."

Milar's retirement pushed up

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council Monday voted to make City Manager Jean Milar's resignation effective Dec. 31, one month before Milar had planned to leave.

Milar, who resigned last week, stated at that time he would remain on until Jan. 31. Milar has been Twin Falls City Manager for 10 years.

When he resigned, Milar said he wanted to remain on through January to effect a smooth transition.

By remaining on the city payroll through his January birthdate, Milar might also have added to his retirement plan tenure, although this was uncertain, council members noted.

But the Council never agreed to the Jan. 31 date, and several council members indicated last week they would move for an earlier effective date.

While approving the Dec. 31 date, the Council also voted to keep Milar on the city payroll through his birthdate and trailow him to cash in on some 20 days vacation credit he has accumulated, thus keeping him on the city payroll through February.

Councilman Chris Talkington said allowing a city employee to cash in on vacation credit is a normal fringe benefit.

Talkington added the city should have resolved the resignation date issue when Milar first resigned last week. "I feel as long as we have accepted his resignation, I think we did a great disservice by not resolving all the questions. It was not fair to him as a person. It was not fair to the city," he said.

The Council's decision, passed formally Monday night, was determined in an earlier work session.

While most council members at that time agreed to the Dec. 31 date, two, Bud Cheney and Jim Smallwood, wanted Milar out this week.

Cheney said he felt Milar's lame duck status would diminish his effectiveness with city personnel.

Cheney said his proposal was not directed at Milar personally. "I think he's a tremendous individual. The Council thinks he's a very capable individual," he said, but retaining a man who has resigned is a poor management tactic.

"I don't think we ought to bind ourselves to any one individual as indispensable," Cheney said. The city immediately should begin transferring Milar's responsibilities to assistant City Manager Tom Courtney, he added.

He added the post would eventually be temporarily filled by Courtney anyway since Milar's replacement could probably not be selected before the end of the year. Courtney said the earliest a replacement could be found is mid-January.

Giving their share

Marvin Veeder, Jerome, and Bob Linderman, right, Twin Falls, gave their share of blood Tuesday under the careful eye of American Red Cross R.N. Linda McLaughlin at the First United Presbyterian Church in Twin Falls. The blood drive began Monday and was sponsored by the Sawtooth Chapter of the American Red Cross. Program chairman Arlene Florence said another blood drive will be held January 14 and 15.

Hospital ends resale of drugs and supplies

By BEN McKELWAY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Memorial Hospital administrator William Burns wants to re-evaluate the hospital's practice of selling bulk medical supplies to local businesses and individuals.

Burns, who said he recently discovered the hospital has been "the warehouse of the community," told the hospital board Monday that some contracts with national supply companies prohibit resale of purchased goods. Until he develops a new policy, he said, he has told his staff no more supplies will be sold without advance permission from him.

There is a good chance the sale of certain goods will continue in the future, Burns said, but not at the low prices local buyers have known in past years. Most of the goods have been sold at the same price the hospital paid, he said.

In a related issue, Burns also said he plans to study the hospital pharmacy's policy of filling prescriptions on holidays or after other drug stores are closed. He said he wants to be sure the hospital's prices are no lower than those charged by commercial drug stores, so the pharmacy will not be competing with private businesses.

In other business Monday, the hospital board voted to pay a Boise firm $11,000 to conduct an "energy audit" of the hospital and prepare a report to the federal Department of Energy that will increase the hospital's chances of receiving federal matching funds for future renovations that would help conserve energy.

And Lois Matheney, president of the MVMH Auxiliary, presented the board with her group's annual report. The group's members worked 8,357 volunteer hours from January to September and recently voted to give the hospital $26,000 this year, she said. The money was raised through a variety of fund raising efforts, which included revenues from the sale of fresh flowers in the hospital lobby.

The flower sales began Sept. 18, the report said, with the auxillary retaining 40 percent of the gross. By Oct. 23 the flower sales had raised $293.10 for the group.

Slavey's sold, remodeled

KETCHUM — Preparations are under way to remodel the old Slavey's Club building into an old-fashioned sandwich shop and steak-house complete with a bar and dance floor.

The once-popular saloon that attracted local residents as well as tourists will be renamed Slavey's Red Robin.

John Beaupre of Ketchum and Jerry Kingen of Seattle are the new owners of the establishment. Kingen operates several other Red Robin restaurants in the Seattle area. All follow the same late-1800s motif, featuring lots of brass, cut glass and wooden fans as decor.

According to Kathy Wyple, the new manager, the menu will include a variety of soups, large salads, and many different types of hamburgers. Evening meals will feature barbecued and teriyaki steak and chicken. She noted that prices will be somewhat lower than at other steak houses in the area. Remodeling will begin next week, and it is anticipated that Slavey's Red Robin will be open for business sometime in January.

Thanksgiving meals offered

TWIN FALLS — This year on Thanksgiving the Salvation Army is offering either groceries or a hot meal at a local restaurant to those in need.

According to Lt. William Heiselman of the Salvation Army, most of those requesting assistance are asking for the groceries. Those needing to get in touch with the Salvation Army on Thanksgiving Day may do so through the police department.

The Salvation Army Christmas kettles will go out on Friday and Saturday. On Saturday the KLIX chicken will man the bell at the Blue Lakes Shopping Mall.

United Way nears goal

TWIN FALLS — The United Way of Twin Falls has received $94,707.48 in cash and pledges for the 1980 campaign, which is 72 percent of the $130,000 goal. The campaign committee is hopeful of reaching the goal prior to the Dec. 7 awards luncheon.

Rural continues to lead the divisions toward their goal with 96 percent; large business 87 percent; educational 86 percent; small businesses 66 percent; banks 75 percent; special gifts 63 percent; professional 54 percent; medical 49 percent and government 32 percent.

Police

Chase ends in arrest

RUPERT — Kay Michael Gee, 18, of Rupert, was arrested just after 6:30 a.m. Saturday after being pursued by Rupert police.

Police were trying to apprehend him for traffic violations. When he failed to pull over, the pursuit followed. When he was stopped he was charged with failure to stop for an emergency vehicle, reckless driving, driving while intoxicated, and illegal consumption. Then police realized the pickup possibly was stolen. It belonged to Cecil Noble of Rupert who had not yet discovered it missing.

Magistrate Judge Ron Bruce reported Gee pleaded guilty to the charges of failure to stop for an emergency vehicle and driving while intoxicated. But he said the prosecuting attorney may be planning to drop the other two city charges.

The county had not yet filed car theft charges, but Bruce said he was told by the boy's father the victim may not press the case as long as the dent in his pickup is prepared.

Threat ends in jail

TWIN FALLS — Humberto Sanchez, 34, of Twin Falls, was being held in the county jail Tuesday in lieu of $1,500 bond after he allegedly threatened his wife's life.

City police arrested Sanchez after his wife, Sara Sanchez, called the department Monday afternoon to say she had fled the couple's home at 318 Gardner Street with their two children. She said her husband threatened to kill her and produced a revolver, which she saw him load, and followed her to the car as she and the children left.

Police charged Sanchez with aggravated assault.

Records, tapes stolen

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls men were arrested on charges of second degree burglary Monday by city police.

Police Chief Tim Qualls said John Emory Guffy, 43, and Ernest Willian Becker, 35, both of Twin Falls, have been charged with breaking into a home on Polk Street on Sunday.

The two were in the county jail Tuesday in lieu of $1,500 bond each.

They were charged with breaking into a home at 289 Polk Street. Brett Sturgeon, who reported the break-in, said a total loss of $1,025 in record albums and damage resulted. He said thieves took 150 record albums and a 10 speed bicycle from the home. He said the owner was Fritz Kippes.

Sturgeon also told police someone broke into his 1967 vehicle parked in front of the property Monday, taking a cassette player and a number of tapes.

Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant in Twin Falls also reported a burglary Sunday night. No arrests have been made in this incident, however.

Police said someone entered the business at 1118 Blue Lakes Boulevard by breaking the lock from a door. Once inside, they also broke open the freezer and removed several cases of frozen shrimp, chicken and desserts. Loss was estimated at $422, including damage to the door and freezer.

Jerome men injured

TWIN FALLS — Two accident victims were listed in fair condition at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital here Tuesday night after being involved in separate accidents in Jerome County.

Idaho State Police Cpl. Gene Bolton said Charles Wangerin, 23, of Twin Falls, was driving a 1976 pickup truck on the road leading from the Big and Little Ranches housing development to the old Jerome highway. Bolton said the driver went through a stop sign and ran into a sand pit. He was treated for facial cuts and bruises. He was also cited for driving while intoxicated and failure to register a vehicle. A passenger, Dewayne Perkins, 37, of Twin Falls, escaped injury. The accident occurred at 11:50 p.m.

At about 2:25 a.m. two miles north of Twin Falls on Highway 93, a head-on collision sent Daniel Lee Magoffin to the hospital with head and face injuries.

Bolton said Magoffin, 20, of Jerome, pulled onto the four-lane section of Highway 93, heading north in the southbound traffic lane. He collided with a IML Freighline truck pulling three trailer units. Bolton said Raymond L. Pace, 52, of Salt Lake City was driving the freight truck.

Minidoka turns down free dropout course

By CAROL HOSLER
Times-News writer

RUPERT — The Minidoka County School Board Monday turned down an offer of a $12,000 program to prevent dropouts among limited-English students at West Minico Junior High School.

Superintendent Wayne Fagg read a letter from Stan Patterson, director of the Migrant Education Resource Center, describing the grant. "The State Board of Education has given a grant of $12,000 to the Migrant Education Resource Center to develop programs for minority students who are described as 'potential dropouts,'" said the letter. It explained that Bill Bowman, principal of the junior high school, had identified approximately 12 students who are in need of special services.

Patterson's letter proposed a Life Skills class to be offered next semester to the 12 students, with emphasis on career awareness. Taught by a certified part-time teacher, the class would come at no cost to the school. The school would provide the space for the class and would re-schedule the 12 students to free them to participate in the class.

Board member Jim Brown moved the acceptance of the program. In discussion, Hal Stevenson, who was chairing the meeting in Alvin Keller's absence, said, "If we were putting this money into kids who are staying in the area, I would be in favor of it, but we put all this money into kids who are just going to leave."

Patterson, present at the meeting, explained it was not a migrant program, as such, but a program for any person with a limited English background. He said if migrants were involved, they would likely be "the settled out" kind or they wouldn't be in the area in January. Following the meeting Patterson explained that migrant children continue to be defined as migrant for five years after their family has stopped moving, so they can continue to receive compensatory education for their years of school instability. He said only 60 percent of Idaho migrants are Mexican-Americans, while the other 40 percent are mostly Caucasians, with a very few Laotians and Navajos. He also stressed "limited English" can apply to English-only children as well as children for whom English is a second language.

Pat Weimer asked if the three girls expelled in executive session earlier in the evening could be involved in such a program. "If it could prevent situations like that, I'd be in favor of it." No one answered her question.

Fagg expressed his support for the program, but the motion died for lack of a second. Fagg asked if further discussion would clarify the problem. A few more questions were asked, then Stevenson quickly proceeded to the next item on the agenda.

Responding to the decision Tuesday morning, Patterson said, "I don't understand the board's decision. The children have been identified and their parents have approved of their participation. These kids get F's. They are going to drop out."

Patterson quoted a few statistics: Nationally, only one out of every 10 migrant children graduates from high school. Here, we usually have about 40 migrants at West Minico, and 10 or more at East. But we only have one or two — or none — at the high school. Those kids are dropouts. They have met with no success at school, have no continuity, usually have home problems, and school failure. I don't care who they are, they need help."

Patterson continued, "They took no action for reasons I can only read into, but perhaps it had something to do with white backlash and anti-federal funding attitudes. I don't think they wanted an explanation. I just can't understand why a school district which is pleading poverty and having to cut programs back would turn down a prrgram which would cost them nothing."

Stevenson, contacted for comment Tuesday morning, said there wasn't much he could do about there being no second to the motion, since he was chairing the meeting. "I can't really tell you how I feel about it. I wish Bill (Bowman) had been there. I would have asked him who the kids selected were."

"I would be against it," Stevenson continued. "They have to be labeled migrant. We have our own kids. We can't get federal funds for them. But it may have been kids who are here and plan to stay."

In response to a reminder that the children didn't have to be identified migrants to be in the program, Stevenson said, "If they are not migrant kids, and it is really vo-ed, it would be good. I like to help the kids in the community."

Dave Smith said Tuesday he couldn't second the motion in favor of the program because it was all too vague.

Similarly, Weimer said she couldn't second it without having more information. "They sprung that on us; we didn't have that letter in our package in advance of the meeting."

Weimer continued, "I don't like to be controlled so much by government programs. What happens to those students when the programs are cut? And I want a program to help all the kids. Mr. Patterson should present it again with more information."

Brown, who made the motion which was never seconded, said Tuesday morning "There's not much you can do. But I'm in favor of anything that will help the kids, no matter what their color or background, so they can move into society. The money at this end is cheaper than public welfare later on. I think the program offered last night was a good one."

Tuesday morning Fagg said, "I don't know why the board turned down the program. But I talked to Roger Sathre, supervisor of special needs education in the Vocational Education Department in Boise this morning. I told him I thought the board was concerned that the program was for a too narrow a category of child. He said we could have a parallel program for any inadequate readers.

"We'll take a closer look at this," continued Fagg. "If we could have it so our own children could also be in it, maybe the board would approve. I'll talk to Floyd (Merrill, assistant superintendent and curriculum director) about it, then the board, and proceed from there."

Cold snap could result in brownouts

By ROBERT VAN BUSKIRK

BOISE (UPI) — A shutdown of the operating generators at the Jim Bridger coal-fired power plant in Wyoming and a depleted streamflow have forced Idaho Power Co. to dip into "critical" water storage at Brownlee Reservoir on the Snake River, company officials said Tuesday.

Units at the Bridger plant have been down at various times for the past week for a "variety" of reasons, and Friday all four generators were down for a period of four hours, Bob Brown, an Idaho Power spokesman said.

The loss of electricity to Idaho Power from the Bridger facility created power problems for the utility.

Brown said a combination of the Bridger problems and a lack of a adequate streamflow into reservoirs providing generating power for Idaho Power's hydroelectric units forced the company to disrupt power to the FMC Corp.'s phosphate plant in Pocatello.

FMC was forced to lay off 72 workers as a result of the Idaho Power cutback. The utility reduced electrical power to FMC by 50 percent for an indefinite period, effective midnight Monday.

Although all four Bridger units were back in operation Tuesday, Brown said "we won't be able to put FMC back in full service because we have to refill Brownlee for winter generation."

Brown said Brownlee has been drawn down 30½ feet since last Thursday and currently is about 10 feet below a normal water year.

Idaho Power officials already had said water storage at Brownlee could be critical this winter because of decreased stream flows caused by a low water year.

The company earlier this year was forced to draw down at Brownlee when the output at Bridger was reduced because of sabotage to one of the operating units and failure of another. At that time, only three of the four units were operational.

The fourth Bridger unit was recently put on the line, but Brown said it was still in the testing phase and was not at full operating capacity.

When the Bridger units were shut down this summer, Idaho Power was forced to buy additional power from Washington public utilities and Canadian sources to meet irrigation and residential demands during an extended hot weather period.

Idaho Power jointly owns the Bridger facility and is entitled to one-third of the output or 667,000 kilowatts of electricity when it is operating at full capacity. The maximum full operating capacity at Brownlee is 450,000 kilowatts.

Brown said neither Bridger or Brownlee have been operating at full capacity because of problems at the Wyoming plant and the low streamflow into Brownlee.

So far, Brown said, the company has not experienced any brownouts. He said the only interruption was at FMC so the company could meet the the demands of its residential customers.

But, he added, a cold spell such as last year could create a serious problem similar to last year when Idaho Power had to fire up its turbine generator at Hailey and purchase additional electricity from outside sources.

"One real cold day is enough," Brown said. "That would bring on everybody's heating, which is a major drain on our system."

Idaho Power officials met with Gov. John V. Evans Monday to brief him on the power situation and explain the problems at Brownlee and the reasons that service was curtailed to FMC.

Who will fix the Owsley Bridge?

HAGERMAN — Directors of the Twin Falls and Hagerman Highway Districts haved scheduled a public meeting for Tuesday night to discuss the fate of the Owsley Bridge over the Snake River south of Hagerman.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the American Legion Hall at Hagerman. At that time directors will discuss whether to abandon or retain the old bridge, and they are asking the public to offer comments to help guide the two district boards in reaching the best possible decision.

The bridge was constructed in 1920 and 21 with a load limit of 20 tons, but because of deterioration and aging of the timber deck, the span now is restricted to 10-ton loads.

Highway officials say the 429-foot-long span has a clear width between curbs of 16 feet, 8 inches. Overhead clearance on the bridge is 15 feet.

The Idaho Board of Highway Directors removed the bridge and 1.6 miles of U.S. Highway 30 from the state system in July 1961.

Officials of the two highway districts responsible for the bridge say the frequent and flagrant overloading of the structure is of great concern.

Only minor repairs and maintenance have been made on the bridge since it was turned over to the highway districts. Officials say it needs repainting and a whole new deck if it is to be brought up to a 15-ton load capacity. It is estimated this would cost about $124,000 plus a surface on the new deck. Even with this expenditure, the structure would not meet current bridge load requirements.

Preliminary estimates from the state Division of Highways indicates about 350 vehicles per day use the bridge.

Another problem faced by the highway districts is the tight budgeting in view of the 1 percent tax limits. Officials say this has decreased highway district income and the revenue from the motor user tax has also decreased.

Individuals using the bridge for regular travel and others interested in its future are urged to attend the public meeting. Additional information is available from Kenn Anderson, Twin Falls Highway District engineer, or Clyde Clifford, Hagerman Highway District director. Anderson is available by calling 733-4062 and Clifford at 837-4431.

Teachers ask Legislature to save schools

By ANN D. KIRKWOOD

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Education Association Tuesday called on the 1980 Legislature to hike school funding 13.2 percent and repeal the 1 percent tax cut law to avert "a crisis in education."

Association President Willie Sullivan told reporters the Legislature should increase school funding by $32 million — a 13.2 percent hike over this year's funding — to pay teachers higher salaries and cover rising costs of gasoline, heating fuel, paper, insurance and materials.

He said the organization representing about 8,000 teachers across the state decided last spring to "close the Idaho schools" at the 1980 Legislature doesn't take "appropriate action" to "realistically deal with the financial crisis imposed upon the schools by the 1 percent initiative."

Sullivan, however, said his organization's decision to close schools in the state "is not a threat." He said the group will work with legislators to see that at least significant portions of the associations six-part legislative package is approved.

Sullivan said teachers want the Legislature to repeal the 1 percent or, as an alternative, delay implementing the law until all property reassessments are completed. Teachers' first goal is to gain higher funding and, second, to gain legislative repeal of the 1 Percent, he said.

He said legislators would gain public support by repealing the law and replacing it with "tax reform laws that will really do the citizens some good." Such reforms, he said, could accomplish "what the citizens of Idaho wanted when they passed the 1 percent."

Sullivan said a poll by Boise-based Professional Resource Group and commissioned by the association indicated that 70 percent of those questioned within the past two months believed a hike in the sales tax would be an acceptable method of raising state revenues.

He said the association supports measures to increase funds for education, including a hike in sales tax or removing some sales tax exemptions, such as the exemption for sales taxes on services.

He said a "substantial amount" of increased revenues should go to teacher salaries. Legislators could grant part of that increase, he said, by agreeing to pay the 4.5 percent of each teachers' salary that now is deducted for retirement benefits.

The teachers organization also called on the Legislature to eliminate or revise the tax charge freeze passed last year to allow for new property on the tax rolls and inflation. The group's legislative package also includes a request for a distribution schedule for property tax revenues that gives education funding top priority.

Church wants sugar bargain kept

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. [illegible] agreement as a "bargaining chip" to obtain higher sugar prices for domestic growers. In the absence of domestic sugar legislation, the administration must use its authority, based on existing law, to boost prices.

In his agreement with the administration, Church said he agreed to bring the international agreement or treaty up for a vote in the Foreign Relations Committee, of which he is chairman. The agreement then calls for the administration to boost prices on domestic sugar to 15.8 cents a pound, up from the present 15 cents a pound.

Church said he also has agreed to bring up the international agreement on the Senate floor once the administration hikes domestic sugar prices.

Snakebite vaccine found in Idaho?

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Two University of Idaho researchers said today preliminary studies using cobra venom may lead to vaccines capable of protecting humans and animals against all forms of snakebite.

Dr. Ken Laurence, professor of zoology and biological sciences department chairman, and associate Darwin Vest said so far they have succeeded in protecting animals against the lethal effects of cobra venom through a single vaccination in advance of the venom's injection.

Regional mediator enters in Hawaiian UPW strike talks

By RAY YUEN

HONOLULU (UPI) — The regional director of the Federal Mediation Service has joined the negotiations in the month-long strike by some 7,700 blue-collar goverment workers in Hawaii.

"It's our business to settle strikes," Richard Williams said upon arrival from San Francisco, "and this strike has been going on a long time."

Williams said he would be joining Honolulu mediator Gayle Winerliter "for a couple of days" in the bargaining between the state and county governments and the United Public Workers Unit 1.

The talks resumed after a weekend break, and there were reports the union has lowered its pay increase demand from $250 a month over two years to $240 a month. It was also reported the government has increased its latest offer from $180 a month to $190.

In a related development, UPW pickets disrupted Honolulu waterfront activities for the third time with a two-hour picketing at container yards in Honolulu Harbor.

Members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union once again declined to cross the picket lines to load and unload cargo from ships.

"We're going to be stepping up our activity at the docks and other places if the strike continues and we don't get a settlement soon," Henry Epstein, state director of the UPW, said.

UPW members on the island of Hawaii returned to their jobs during the weekend for an emergency created by flash flooding on the eastern coast. The UPW members handled road-clearing equipment as some of the heaviest rains in 30 years struck, causing damage in the millions of dollars.

No injuries or loss of life was reported in the flooding, but officials said there were several reports of animals being swept away.

On Maui, Al Preston, vice president for operations of Haleakala Dairy, said 5,200 gallons of milk had to be dumped last week because of the shutdown of the public schools by the UPW strike. He said that, since the strike began, his dairy has lost $54,000 in school milk sales.

Honolulu milk producers also said they suffered losses but could not provide an estimate.

All but 15 of the state's 228 public schools have re-opened since the state Department of Education shut them down because of unsanitary conditions caused by the walkout.

Hawaiian rain damages heavy

HILO, HAWAII (UPI) — At least three homes were destroyed, one person was missing and up to 90 percent of the crops in Waipio Valley destroyed as a result of destructive weekend rains on the east coast of the island of Hawaii, officials said Monday evening.

Police in Honokaa, responding to a missing person report, found a demolished Volkswagen convertible belonging to a 58-year-old woman in Kalopa Gulch. The car was compressed to 2-feet by 5-feet, a police spokesman said, and parts of it were found 1,000 feet downstream.

The National Weather Service said up to 37.50 inches of rain fell over a five-day period ending Monday morning along parts of the coast. A reading of 37.49 inches was reported at Ookala Mauka, midway between Honokaa and Hilo on the coast. The lowest rainfall total for the period was 17.66 inches at Hilo Airport.

County Civil Defense Chief Harry Kim said it would be at least two days before the final damage estimates are available, but preliminary figures placed the damage in the millions of dollars.

Similar destructive rains in January and February of this year hit the same general area and caused $7 million in damages.

"As far as Waipio Valley is concerned," said Kim, "90 percent of the crops are a total loss. The crops include taro, flowers for export — a major agricultural commodity on the island — tomatoes and some new sugar cane plantings.

Three homes in the valley were totally destroyed, Kim said, and many others sustained minor to major damages, such as flooding and being moved off foundations.

He also had praise for striking county blue-collar workers, who returned to their jobs over the weekend when the rains were heaviest to clear roads and service water pumps. He said many of the strikers were staying on the job as needed.

The island of Hawaii also was the scene of fire and ice, besides the abundance of water, over the weekend. Pauahi Crater on the East Rift Zone of Kilauea Volcano erupted for 24 hours Saturday, just before flash flood warnings for the coast were posted, and the 13,796-foot summit of Mauna Kea, some 30 miles from Kilauea, had a four-day old, one-inch snowcap on it Monday.

Rock Springs police officer testifies Cantrell calm after fatal shooting

PINEDALE, Wyo. (UPI) — The officer who first arrived at the spot where a Rock Springs, Wyo., undercover agent was fatally shot by Ed Cantrell told a jury Tuesday that Cantrell was steady and calm in the aftermath of the killing.

Officer Neil Kourbalas of Rock Springs was serving as acting sergeant the night Cantrell shot Michael Rosa, 29, and said later he had acted in self defense. Kourbalas's testimony came in Sublette County District Court, where Cantrell's first-degree murder trial has entered its second week.

Rosa died July 15, 1978, in the back seat of an unmarked patrol car in the parking lot of the Silver Dollar bar, a Rock Springs night spot. Previous testimony from two detectives in the car established that Cantrell, sitting in the front seat, drew his gun and shot Rosa between the eyes after Rosa had been summoned from the Silver Dollar.

Kourbalas said that when he arrived on the scene, he pulled up behind the other car, which was in the north exit from the Silver Dollar as if it was about to make a right turn. Kourbalas told the jury he got out, walked up to the other vehicle and saw Rosa's body inside with its head down.

Kourbalas told the jury: "Jim Callas (one of the two detectives in the car) looked at me and said, 'There has been a shooting that needs to be investigated. Don't you know what's happened?' He said 'Mike's been shot.' I said 'Who shot him?' Mr. Callas said 'Ed did.'

Kourbalas continued: "Cantrell said 'I thought he (Rosa) was going to shoot me. He went to reach inside his shirt.'

"I said 'How bad is he hurt?'"

Kourbalas said Callas answered: "I think he's dead."

Defense attorney Gerald Spence asked how Cantrell acted.

"He was acting like the Ed I've always known," Kourbalas said. "He was calm and had his head about him."

Kourbalas said he had the vehicle containing Rosa moved from the Silver Dollar parking lot to a nearby filling station because he was concerned about bystanders.

"Also right around that time I thought it would be wise if whoever investigated it shouldn't be the Rock Springs police department," Kourbalas said. "I thought it best that the Rock Springs police department stay out of the investigation."

Kourbalas, reading from a police dispatcher's log said that besides an ambulance, the following persons were called to the scene that night: Sweetwater County Sheriff James Stark, then County Attorney Robert Bath, then City Attorney Robert Johnson, a police sergeant, an FBI agent and a highway patrolman.

Kourbalas said the first officer to "really take command of the scene" was Highway Patrolman Dennis Allen, who had some experience with homicide cases in the New York State Police.

Earlier Tuesday, Matt Bider the second detective in the patrol car was asked by Spence whether he had believed Cantrell's assertion that the shooting was in self defense.

"Yes," Bider answered.

"Do you believe him now?"

"Yes."

The prosecution has argued that Cantrell was concerned about Rosa's plans to testify before a state grand jury which was investigating allegations of vice and corruption in Rock Springs in the summer of 1978.

Newspaper anti-trust suit begins

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A jury trial began Monday on the opening phase of an antitrust suit attacking the combination in 1965 of business operations of the San Francisco Chronicle and Examiner.

A jury of four women and two men was selected in the court of U.S. District Judge William A. Ingram to determine if the newspapers' agreement was authorized by the federal Newspaper Preservation Act.

If the jury finds that the agreement was not authorized, other issues would be heard later in separate proceedings before a different jury.

Arthur J. Shartsis, attorney for the Pacific Sun which brought the suit, said both the Chronicle and Examiner were financially sound, thriving newspapers at the time of the agreement.

"There was no justification whatsoever for the agreement which ended competition in San Francisco newspapers," he said in his opening argument.

Shartsis said that alternatives to the agreement were not explored because the "question was how much more money could be made" by the agreement.

The Sun brought the damage suit, saying that the combined newspapers raised their advertising rates so high that advertisers had no money left to spend with competing publications. As a result, the San Francisco edition of the Sun failed, the suit said.

Richard Archer, attorney for the defendants, said that in the early 1960s, the Examiner was "the most successful failure in the United States." He said the Examiner successfully increased advertising and circulation but could never catch the Chronicle "in readership acceptance."

The joint operating agreement of the two major newspapers was the only way the Examiner could avoid astronomical losses, Archer said.

The trial is expected to take four weeks.

POCATELLO — Gem State.

That's the official name of the new Magic Valley and eastern Idaho alignment that has arisen from the break-up of the Southern Idaho Conference.

In a Tuesday meeting, the name was adopted by the member schools after considering geographical designations and deciding "what's in a name."

The league's name, however, was secondary to the business meeting that addressed itself mostly to formulation of a constitution and by-laws to operate under.

While the meeting was underway, Dick Stickle, executive secretary of the Idaho Interscholastic Activities Association, telephoned on a two-pronged mission.

The first was to see if Nov. 29 was a suitable date for representatives of all A-1 schools in the state to meet and consider revamping of the state playoff schedule.

The other was to ascertain that the members of the new alignment were willing to "make a commitment" to the Boise area schools to play at least two Boise schools — home and home in the regular season.

Twin Falls Principal Frank Charlton said most of the schools had committed to the latter proposition. However, he said the Bruins' had promised to try to include only Nampa on their schedule.

He said one of the suggestions from the new alignment would be to reduce the playoffs to four teams rather than the eight-team format of this year. That would be the Gem State winner, the Northern representative, the best A-1 record in the Cross State and a Boise representative.

"That is only a proposal and might not get anywhere," Charlton emphasized.

He noted most of those attending the meeting felt reducing the football season by a week would be desirable.

In other action, the new conference drew up a tentative football schedule for next season.

Invitations for membership to Burley and Blackfoot drew different responses. Burley sent a letter saying the Bobcats were not interested at this time but would like to keep the door open for future consideration. Blackfoot sent nothing officially.

With a NNC player looking on, CSI's Antoine Williams and Curtis Rayford scramble for loose ball

CSI rolls by NNC

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — Eric Dye provided some outside shooting punch and Antoine Williams some excellent assists Tuesday night as the College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles rolled past the Northwest Nazarene Jayvees 82-68.

The young Crusaders gave the Eagles trouble over the first 30 minutes of the game, shooting the ball well during that span and hovering generally from two to six points back.

But Coach Tom Weirich, who used all his players in this one, went to a deliberate offensive pattern which finally negated the NNC zone. But 17 points was as much distance as the Eagles could put between themselves and NNC.

Coach Weirich said he went to the slowdown because "I felt it was necessary that we picked up six or eight straight points on them. We felt if we could take the ball outside and then power it to the basket, we could do that. Also, we wanted to wear some time off the clock and we didn't want to get them into the bonus situation. They are awfully good shooters and we didn't want them shooting free throws."

The coach said the outside punch of Dye was helpful because he feels the Eagles will be seeing a lot of the zone this year.

Dye got eight of his 14 points in the first 10 minutes when the game was tied about as often as not. CSI generally held the advantage in between times although NNC had the lead three times.

The last NNC lead came at 17-15 with 9:11 left in the first half. Derrick Thomas pulled the Eagles back even and Fred Talley then sent them ahead. There was a final tie at 21 before Dye hit two straight jumpers.

Still CSI couldn't get more than four points ahead until the final two minutes. Thomas established the big [illegible] on a cripple off a good Williams feed but NNC was still within six at intermission.

The early part of the second half was a replay of the first 20 minutes. CSI's Larry Furlow had a point duel with Rod Forseth of NNC for a while. With 14 minutes to go, Jim Visger pulled NNC to within 51-49 and the Crusaders missed three shots and a chance for a tie the next time downcourt. That crested their effort for the night.

With 13 minutes left Thomas hit for CSI and the Eagles then went into their slowdown against the zone. The first effort ended in an offensive foul call but Williams then stole the ball and drove for a slam dunk. Thomas and Williams had offsetting field goals with NNC's Visger. Furlow and Williams then blew things out of proportion with two field goals apiece and NNC foresook its zone.

CSI's biggest lead was 17 at 80-63.

The Eagles remain in Twin Falls this weekend, hosting usually strong Arizona Western Friday and Saturday night. Coach Weirich said he hadn't been able to nail down many specifics about the Matadors other than they had nipped the Pendleton Marines by a point Monday night. He said he understood the Arizona crew went 6-11, 6-9 and 6-7 across the back line.

The remainder of the schedule includes Nov. 30, CSI vs. Lane Community College at Ontario; Dec. 1, CSI vs. Central Oregon at Ontario; Dec. 3, CSI at NNC Jayvees; Dec. 5-6, CSI, Southern Utah, Utah Tech at Snow College tournament; DEc. 7, CSI at College of Eastern Utah, and Dec. 10, CSI at Weber State Jayvee.

Overshadows big game

'Henderson Affair' escalates

By MIKE RABUN
UPI Sports Writer

DALLAS (UPI) — Dallas coach Tom Landry talked about emotion, dedication and enthusiasm Tuesday, but on top of that he found out he wasn't through talking about Thomas Henderson.

Even Houston coach Bum Phillips had an opinion, although at first he didn't want to give one.

The "Henderson Affair" — in which Landry dismissed the Pro Bowl linebacker from the team and thus brought about Henderson's retirement from football — still overshadowed any advance chatter about Dallas' critical meeting with the Houston Oilers Thursday.

One Dallas newspaper Tuesday put the Henderson story on its front page alongside the lead story concerning Fran. In Houston, where pitcher Nolan Ryan signed with the Astros for $1 million a year Monday, a newspaper gave Henderson and Ryan equal billing.

Phillips, whose Oilers are tied for the AFC Central lead with Pittsburgh, was reluctant to discuss Henderson and what his dismissal from the Cowboys might mean.

"I don't have any opinion," said Phillips. "That's not something that affects our football team. Everybody has got their own situations. We've had things that were similar, but maybe not quite like that.

"When we have things like that I don't think Dallas could tell you how I feel about it. I wouldn't care how they feel and I don't think they care what I think about this."

Phillips was asked if Houston might be interested in trading for Henderson after the season is over.

"I wouldn't even want to talk about it now," he said. "Right now I'm worried about Thanksgiving Day."

Finally, however, Phillips came forth with a brief personal feeling.

"If a guy can't get along with someone for some reason or another, regardless of what it is or whose fault it is, if you don't get along one place you might not get along someplace else real good, either."

Landry, at his weekly media meeting, said his team was not playing with as much emotion or dedication as he would like, but pointed out that it is hard for a successful team to rise to the occasion all the time.

But just as the subject of Henderson appeared to be dropped, it would come back again.

"Yesterday was a trying day for all involved," Landry said. "But I think we'll be back in the groove again today."

Landry had said Monday that Henderson could not function in a backup role with the Cowboys and he amplified on that Tuesday.

"It would be hard for him to handle a second-string role," Landry said. "His ego is such that he needs the starting role to function effectively."

And if Henderson had been relegated to second-string status, Landry was afraid Henderson's disruption factor would be increased.

"Very definitely, I do," the coach said. "If I hadn't thought he would have affected the team I wouldn't have gotten rid of him."

Mike Hegman, best remembered for swiping the ball from Terry Bradshaw and running for a touchdown in last season's Super Bowl, will move into the starting strongside linebacking position.

"Mike is the only one (linebacker) we have healthy," said Landry. "We don't have many numbers at linebacker right now."

F&G seeks boost in licenses' fees

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho Fish and Game Department Director Joe Greenley has announced plans to seek legislative approval for "substantive" increases in most fish and game licenses.

Greenley met with several southwest Idaho legislators in Nampa Tuesday, saying the department will ask the 1980 Legislature to approve license and tag fee increases, that are expected to total an estimated $670,000 in additional revenues during the last half of fiscal year 1981 and an estimated $1.8 million in fiscal year 1982.

If the legislature approves the hikes, Greenley said, combined resident hunting and fishing licenses would go up from $10 to $15 a year, resident fishing licenses would rise from $6 to $10 and resident hunting licenses would climb from $5 to $6.

Greenley said the additional revenue is needed if the department is to maintain current program levels. He said the hikes also would allow the department to add "limited new services in critical areas," such as conservation and fish research.

Greenley said the department receives no money from the state's general fund. He said virtually all of the department's revenues come from the sale of fish, and game licenses and tags and from federal grants.

An account of the events at Crane Falls Lake

By BARBARA PHILIPS

There are still many questions being asked today regarding the Crane Falls fish kill last summer.

The following account of that unfortunate happening has been pieced together from information provided by several individuals close to the incident:

Crane Falls Lake, located south of Mountain Home, is a lake which requires an air pump to retain proper oxygen levels for its "trophy" trout.

The lake is an attempt by the fish and game department to create a trophy trout water (a lake which has double-digit weight fish for mounting instead of numerous small pan-fry fish).

The pump was initially started March 29 and rechecked April 10. All was well until April 11 when it was reported to be inoperative because the circuit breaker had been tripped.

After it was reset, the pump ran until April 18 when it stopped again. The Idaho Fish and Game Bureau of Engineering was contacted regarding the circuit breaker malfunction.

By June 22, the electrician for the bureau had not yet been to Crane Falls. As the pump had been out since April 18, the F&G inspected the fish to see if they were still all right. They were found to be in excellent condition.

Will Reid, regional fishery manager, did the inspection and also reported that "the dissolved oxygen in the water was 9.2 PPM at 1400 hours and had a pH of 9.0."

On June 26, the electrician inspected the pump and found that one fuse had burned out. After it was replaced, the pump was restarted with another inspection by Reid on June 29 confirming that it was running without any problems.

A recheck on July 10 discovered the pump had stopped again. The circuit breaker had tripped once more.

After resetting the pump, the engineer was called but could not immediately respond. Two days later the pump stopped again.

On July 13, Reid returned to Crane Falls and noticed that the fish were beginning to show signs of stress. He reported the "pan evaporation rate at this date was 1.3 inches" as the weather was unusually hot.

The lake had a dense growth of rooted aquatic vegetation and an extremely heavy bloom of phyto plankton. Visibility into the lake was only 2 feet.

A recheck of the lake on July 31 indicated many fish under extreme stress and dead fish along the shore.

The engineering crew arrived at Crane Falls Lake on Aug. 2. They found the amperage to the pump was too high which caused the fuse to continually blow.

They replaced the blown fuse with one of a higher amperage rating and restarted the pump. There have been no problems with the pump since that date.

The lack of oxygen in the lake was the main factor causing the fish kill. The oxygen decrease by the inoperative pump, however, was not the only problem.

The oxygen level also was lowered by the unseasonably high water temperatures, an abundance of aquatic vegetation and an unusually high evaporation rate.

The problem of the inoperative pump now seems to be solved; but there are other problems regarding Idaho's attempt at having a trophy trout fishery.

There are illegal transplantings of warm water fish into Crane Falls Lake. At a recent netting, the following fish were captured: 9 brown trout, 2 bullhead catfish, 3 bluegill sunfish, 3 crapple and 9 largemouth bass.

These warm water species had been eradicated in 1977. Yet they have, once again, appeared at the lake.

This seems to be a typical problem that occurs when a lake is located near a military base. Servicemen from southern state who are transferred north prefer fishing water situations similar to those they left behind. Consequently, some will transplant warm water species into surrounding lakes.

Neighboring landowners also tend to transplant warm water fish because they want to fish these species throughout the year.

These factors all contribute to the future progress of Crane Falls Lake. Will Reid states that the fish and game department's plans are "to make annual plantings of subcatchable trout" until the game department can evaluate the water quality problem as well as the "impact of the warm water species."

He added the "planted trout should be able to attain a large enough size until the other species become too abundant."

ASU decision: The Slaughterhouse of the Innocents

Back in the late '50s, when football recruiting scandals struck most members of the old Pacific Coast Conference, the league in its wisdom pondered and came up with the "solution" that involved college seniors could play only half a season. UCLA Coach Red Sanders, who loved Biblical allusions, was moved to observe wryly: "These Solomons deliberated, weighed — and then really did cut the baby in half."

If Red were alive today, he would have a Biblical equivalent for what the new Pacific Coast Conference — the Pac-10 — just did in the case of the eight illegally eligible Arizona State players. Red would reach back to the story of Herod and dub it, "The Slaughter of the Innocents."

Commissioner Wiles Hallock punished Arizona State by knocking the University of Southern California right out of the Rose Bowl. Now the Trojans have to win their way back in.

It's a new trend. President Carter punished the Iranian revolutionaries by depriving American motorists of Iran's oil.

The innocent bystander doesn't have a chance any more. Next, we'll be sentencing the foreman of the jury to the electric chair and letting the murderer go. After a bank robbery, we'll arrest the guy standing on the street giving a description of the getaway car.

Just because USC had the rotten luck not to lose to Arizona State, it's stripped of its title, its epaulets are torn off, and it's drummed out of the corps. You get a mental picture of a guy flogging his butler and then, when asked what he's doing, he points to a guy sitting by the swimming pool up to his hips in whiskey, cigars, and chorus girls, and living it up, and the guy says "I'm punishing him!" Talk about going home and kicking the dog when things go wrong at the office. Wiles Hallock has run down the street and put handcuffs on USC to teach Arizona State a lesson. USC says "Hey! What'd I do?!" and the conference says in effect, "Shut up and keep chopping those rocks!"

Lewis Carroll would have loved Pacific Coast football conferences. They make Alice in Wonderland look like a documentary. These hatters are all mad. They make the Red Queen look like a sober-sided, responsible citizen. The Salem witch hunts were constitutional by comparison.

F. Lee Bailey or even Oliver Wendell Holmes would be fascinated by a system of law which holds you guilty by reason of innocence, culpable because you happened to be alive at the time the crime was committed. Talk about guilt by association. USC's only crime is, it's acquainted with the criminal.

The University of Washington, on the other hand, is the beneficiary of this cockeyed code. It's like getting a check in the mail from an unknown admirer, or being named in the will of a millionaire relative you didn't even know you had.

If the University of Washington goes to the Rose Bowl, no long shot by any means now, it will be simply because they won a game by phone, a game they had lost in person.

If anyone can make any sense out of this, he should be committed. It opens up a whole new marvelous new system of jurisprudence. Punish the victims. Jail the witnesses. Sentence the available. Take no prisoners. Bomb the whole countryside. Fire into a crowd. Damn the torpedoes.

If USC doesn't go to the Rose Bowl, that should teach Arizona State not to play eight scholastically ineligible players any more. If Charles White loses the Heisman Trophy to Billy Sims that's really throwing the book at Arizona State.

It should also teach USC to stop scheduling teams like Stanford that only suit up scholars. Or legitimate students. They better start scheduling schools that have a whole bunch of phantom courses. That way, to coin a phrase, you can't lose. Or, better yet, you can lose all the way to the Rose Bowl. And, if you're ever brought up on grand theft charges, you just better hope Wiles Hallock is the one on the bench. He'll lock up the bailiff, say sternly to you, "Now, let that be a lesson to you." And give you back your gun.

Free agent players dwindle

By United Press International

With the annual winter baseball meetings less than two weeks away, there are still 19 free agents selected in the re-entry draft left unsigned.

Three of the bigger names in the draft inked multi-year contracts Tuesday, with first baseman Tony Perez going to Boston, relief pitcher Al Hrabosky signing with Atlanta and pitcher Rick Wise joining San Diego.

Among the top names who previously agreed to terms were pitcher Nolan Ryan (Houston), pitcher Dave Goltz (Los Angeles), relief pitcher Don Stanhouse (Los Angeles), first baseman Bob Watson (New York Yankees), pitcher Rudy May (New York Yankees) and pitcher Bruce Kison (California).

Still unsigned are infielder Joe Morgan, outfielder Jay Johnstone, infielder Jorge Orta, infielder Dave Chalk, pitcher John Curtis, infielder Rennie Stennett, outfielder Roy White, shortstop Fred Patek, outfielder Jim Wohlford, relief pitcher Skip Lockwood, catcher Milt May, outfielder Greg Gross, pitcher Andy Hassler, pitcher Don Hood, outfielder Willie Horton, infielder Bobby Valentine, pitcher Dave Hamilton, pitcher Fred Norman and outfielder Rowland Office.

Perez, a 37-year-old power hitter who played last season with Montreal, signed a three-year guaranteed contract with the Red Sox estimated at $... The Red Sox at one time ... on him to fill the designated hitter role vacated by Watson.

"There's not that much difference between the two," said Haywood Sullivan, the Red Sox general manager. "The age (Watson is 33) is not that much. Time will tell, of course, but we're looking forward to a productive and prosperous relationship."

Hrabosky inked a five-year contract with the Braves which calls for him to collect on deferred payments over 35 years. Hrabosky may also be given a job as a sportscaster for club owner Ted Turner's radio station after he retires from baseball.

The "Mad Hungarian" pitched for Kansas City last season. Two years ago Hrabosky was one of the top relievers in the American League with 20 saves.

Wise, a 15-year veteran with four major league teams, signed a five-year contract with the Padres for an estimated $2 million.

Wise signs $2 million Padre pact

By United Press International

Free agent pitcher Rick Wise, a 15-year veteran with four major league teams, signed a five-year contract Tuesday with the San Dieo Padres for an estimated $2 million.

Wise, 34, who compiled a 15-10 record with the Cleveland Indians last season, was introduced by the Padres at a news conference at San Diego Stadium.

The Padres did not disclose terms of the pact, but it was reportedly worth from $1.7 million to $2.1 million.

"I'm delighted to be coming to the Padres," said Wise, who was the sixth of 17 free agents selected by San Diego in baseball's re-entry draft earlier this month.

"I have confidence in myself that I can do the job," the 6-2, 195-pound right-hander said. "I hope that my contribution will help the Padres."

Wise came to Cleveland from Boston in 1978 in a six-man trade that sent Dennis Eckersley to the Red Sox. In Boston, he was a member of the so-called "Buffalo Heads," the curly-locked pitching crew headed by Bill Lee.

He broke into the major leagues with the Philadelphia Phillies and spent two years with the St. Louis Cardinals before being traded to Boston in October, 1973. Wise has a 178-165 lifetime record and career 3.68 earned run average.

Wise would be 38 years old when his ... -year contract with the Padres.

BILLIE JEAN KING, feeling "really good," outplayed Pam Teeguarden 6-3, 6-2 in a 57-minute all American match Tuesday to reach the second round of the $100,000 Brighton Women's Tennis tournament.

Two of the earlier American winners were Terry Holladay and Marita Redondo.

Holladay proved too aggressive and too accurate for British Wightman cupper Michele Tyler, winning 6-1, 6-1 after losing the first game of each set, while Redondo was kept occupied for 76 minutes before overcoming compatriot Anne Kiyomura 6-3, 6-1.

Californian Lea Antonopolis had the misfortune to play third-seeded Virginia Wade next to find the British No.1 in peak form. Antonopolis, who moved with surprising speed for her size, was outgunned 6-2, 6-2 after losing the first five games.

The favorites for the $42,000 first prize, Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert-Lloyd move into action today. Navratilova plays Florenza Mihai of Romania, while Lloyd meets Brigitte Simone of France.

ORLANDO CEPEDA, a 17-year veteran of the major leagues, has joined the Chicago White Sox as the organization's batting instructor and scout, team officials said Tuesday.

His scouting duties will cover Puerto Rico and other Latin American countries.

Cepeda broke into the National League with the San Francisco Giants in 1958 and batted .312 to win the National League Rookie of the Year award.

AL UNSER, three-time Indianapolis 500 winner, signed Tuesday to drive a new Longhorn ground effects car for team owner Bobby Hillin in the 1980 CART auto racing series.

WILFRED BENITEZ, World Boxing Council welterweight champion, was punched or butted on the nose Tuesday by a sparring partner but suffered no serious damage.

The Puerto Rican titleholder went to a hospital for a checkup as a precautionary measure and a doctor told him he may resume training for his title defense against Sugar Ray Leonard Nov. 30 at Caesars Palace.

"I see nothing wrong with him," said Dr. Edward Stevens, the physician who examined him. "I recommend he resume vigorous training."

Stevens administered some nose drops and said any hidden damage would show up during subsequent workouts.

Benitez was hit while sparring with his countryman, Alejandro Falu. He left the ring and went to the hospital.

The champion's manager Jimmy Jacobs said the injury was nothing more than a bloody nose.

BOB COUSY, former Boston Celtics basketball great, has submitted his resignation as commissioner of the American Soccer League, ASL president Joseph Raymond said Tuesday.

Cousy, who has held the post for five seasons in a largely figurehead capacity, is being asked to leave when his contract expires at the end of the year.

JOHN CURTIS, the San Francisco Giant left-hander who was selected by the maximum number of teams in the re-entry draft, has narrowed his choice to four teams.

Agent Jerry Kapstein said Curtis, 31, expects to make a decision by Friday. They are considering teams in both leagues.

Curtis posted a 10-9 record and 4.17 ERA in 1979, allowing 121 hits in 121 innings. He was 9-7 with 3.57 ERA as a starter.

WILT CHAMBERLAIN will not come out of retirement and play for the Cleveland Cavaliers, it was reported Tuesday.

The Plain Dealer quoted unnamed West Coast sources as saying the 43-year-old Hall of Famer will not sign, forcing the Cavs to look elsewhere for an intimidating center to help the struggling club.

The prospects of signing Chamberlain, who retired while with Los Angeles in 1973, had appeared to improve Monday when Lakers owner Jerry Buss announced he would not require compensation if Chamberlain would come out of retirement to play in the NBA.

"I think it would be great for the NBA if Wilt were to ... but I would not want to put anything in the way of this happening," Buss said. "I would enjoy seeing him play again, so I am sure would thousands of basketball fans."

A MUNICIPAL JUDGE Monday convicted the father and brother of former light-heavyweight champion Mike Rossman of assaulting a Philadelphia cab driver.

Judge Lynne Abraham, sitting in the non-jury hearing, acquitted James DePiano II, 35, of Turnersville, N.J., and James DePamo III, 21, Sicklerville, N.J., of aggravated assault. She convicted them of one count each of simple assault against cab driver Michael Inglese, 25, Philadelphia.

Inglese accused the two of assaulting him during an argument at the airport. The DePiano's said Inglese's cab was blocking their car and he refused to move it.

Bruins down Filer

FILER — The Twin Falls Bruins made it two in a row over a tough Filer Wildcat team with a 32-24 victory in girls basketball action Tuesday night.

Karen Harr combined 17 points with aggressive defense to help the Bruins extend their record to 2-0. Filer, after an opening season victory, has dropped their last two games for a 1-2 performance.

The Bruins started the game off with a struggling offense, but used a tough defense to keep the game close.

"We're just not executing on offense like we should be. When we slack on offense, the other team just punches holes in us," said Bruin Coach Kathy Anderson. "Our defense kept us in the first part of the game until we finally got on track."

The Bruins got it going in the second period as they widened their lead at halftime to 16-11.

The Bruins came out in the second half with cold shooting, but still threatened with their stiff defense.

"Our defense has really been aggressive. Our middle girls kept Filer from under the basket and forced them to shoot outside. We also got alot of help on the boards tonight," said Anderson.

Once again, the Bruins found their offense in the final period, but Filer started pressing ... and made a last minute rally.

The Wildcats pulled within four points in the last two minutes and were threatening again before Harr ... their chances with a steal and a lay up.

Mona Fisher capped the game with a pair of free throws with two seconds remaining in the game.

The Bruins shot 76 percent from the charity line, opposed to Filer's 40 percent.

"Anytime you win, or even lose, free throws make a big difference in the game," said Anderson. "It brings the kids together as a closer unit and gives them a lot more confidence."

The Bruin jayvees made it a clean sweep for the night as they handed the Wildcats their second straight loss. Twin Falls stands at 2-0.

Wendell wins in overtime

KIMBERLY — Joan Bokma and Shannon Humbach scored all the points in overtime to hit the Wendell girls to a 30-26 decision over Kimberly Tuesday night.

Wendell led almost throughout the game but never could put the Bulldogs away. Wendell carried a 20-13 lead into the final period and came within seconds of making it stand up. But with seven seconds left, Kimberly's Lisa Molyneux' free throw brought on the overtime.

Bokma opened the overtime wph a field goal and with 20 seconds left Humbach iced it with a pair of free throws.

Kimberly took the preliminary 26-11 behind the 13-point effort of Cindy Cordier.

Declo — Lind 15, Colfirn 7, Estes 6, Hall 2, Gillett 2, Raft River — Freidmeyer 4, Anderson 2, Hodges 2, and Lloyd 1.

Castleford 35, Tigers 15

CASTLEFORD — The Castleford Wolves won their second straight game Tuesday night blasting Richfield 35-15.

The Wolves jumped to a 10-6 first quarter lead and never looked back as the Tigers were hard pressed to stay in the game without their big center, Sandy Anderson, who was sick with the flu.

The Wolves are now 2-0, and Richfield is 1-2.

Richfield	6 10 13 15
Castleford	10 17 27 35

Richfield — Smith 10, Morrison 2, Bor 2, Hall 1. Castleford — T. Black 3, Bulloch 5, Gambrell 6, Hook 6, Schlund 4, Crawbuck.

Jerome 20, Buhl 15

JEROME — Sophomore Gemee VanderVegt came up with 12 points to lead the Jerome Tigers to a 20-15 decision over the Buhl Indians Tuesday night.

VanderVegt hit four points in each of the first three quarters in an odd game that saw both teams go scoreless in one quarter.

VanderVegt got all the points for Jerome in the first period when the Tigers managed a 4-3 lead. Buhl went the rest of the half without a point and Jerome moved ahead 12-3 and then 20-12 after the third rest.

It was Jerome's turn to go ice cold in the fourth period but Buhl could come up with only three points.

Buhl	3 11 12 15
Jerome	4 12 20 20

Buhl — Helbing 6, Easton 2, Stutzman 1, Karel 4, Schaal 2. Jerome — Tobjan 6, Bowman 2, VanderVegt 12.

Valley 45, Murtaugh 32

EDEN — The Valley Vikings broke out to a nine-point first quarter lead and never looked back in downing Murtaugh 45-32 Tuesday night in girls' basketball.

Led by sharpshooting Jill Dixon with 15 points, the win was the second straight for the Vikings. The Red Devils are now 1-2.

Dixon hit on 7 of 14 of her field goals, mostly from outside the key. Jody Breeding turned in an outstanding game for Murtaugh with 19 points.

In the preliminary game, Valley defeated Hansen 32-6. Murtaugh doesn't have a JV team.

Murtaugh	4 11 19 32
Valley	11 21 34 45

Murtaugh — Jody Breeding 19, Jeannette Breeding 4, Perkins 3, Peterson 1, and Nosek 1.
Valley — Hasham 2, Tuberi 4, Day 7, Dixon 15, Grant 6, Henry 9, and Hardy 2.

Dietrich 29, Murtaugh 21

DIETRICH — The Dietrich Blue Devils scrambled to the lead in the first quarter and hung on to defeat Murtaugh 29-21 in girls' basketball action Monday night.

It was the first game of the season for Dietrich, while the Red Devils dropped to 1-2 for the year.

Led by the shooting and defensive play of Diane Higginbotham and Shauna Hubert, Dietrich held a four-point first half margin. By the end of the third quarter the lead had expanded to nine points.

The Blue Devils got outstanding performances from three freshmen — Jeannette Nagel, Gwen Fowers and Becky Meyer.

Lori Bates led Murtaugh with 12 points.

Murtaugh	3 10 12 21
Dietrich	10 14 21 29

Murtaugh — Bates 12, Jodie Breeding 2, Perkins 1, Jeannette Breeding 2, Close 2, Cheney 2.
Dietrich — Diane Higginbotham 8, Sandy Higginbotham 5, Shauna Hubert 10, Fowers 4, and Meyer 2.

W.R. 50, Gooding 34

HAILEY — Wood River's Lisa Marcroft and Denise Haynes pumped in 11 points each to pace the Wolverines to a 50-34 triumph over the winless Gooding Senators Tuesday night.

The Wolverines used a big third quarter to push them to the victory. Leading 21-14 at halftime, Marcroft and Haynes went to work in that period and helped Wood River to a 39-19 bulge that Gooding could never overcome.

Wood River is now 1-1 on the year, after an opening 47-45 loss to Minico last week. Gooding is 0-3.

Gooding	6 14 19 34
Wood River	9 21 39 50

Gooding — Adams 10, Nicholas 3, Graves 10, Clemens 11.
Wood River — Carter 4, Barras 6, Marcroft 11, Haynes 11, Atkinson 3, Lee 6, Branen 2, and Peterson 7.

Alaska college hit with discrimination suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government, in its biggest strike at sex discrimination in college athletics, Tuesday charged the University of Alaska with not giving its women's basketball team funding equal to that received by the men's team.

The action is the Justice Department's first under 1972 Education Amendments barring sex discrimination in college athletics — and is an indication the department will take a tough stance in enforcing the law.

Government lawyers filed papers in U.S. District Court in Anchorage, Alaska seeking to intervene in a private lawsuit filed by three members of last year's Alaska women's team.

The proposed federal suit says the university spends more of its athletics budget on the men's basketball team, and gives the men's team greater publicity, more travel expense money and a bigger coaching staff.

It says the men's team got new uniforms during the 1978-79 season while the women's team still had to use old uniforms that were mismatched.

The proposed suit asks the court to find the university in violation of the law and Constitution and to require it to end the alleged discrimination.

It names as defendants 14 school officials ranging from members of the Board of Regents to Alaska's athletics coordinator, Lew Haines.

Drew Days III, assistant attorney general in charge of the civil rights division, said the department is committed to eliminating sex discrimination in intercollegiate athletics.

The action came a day after the department filed its first suit under Title IX of the 1972 Education Amendments, challenging Texas A & M University's failure to allow women students to join the all-male Texas Aggie marching band.

Days said he hoped the department's two actions would create judicial interpretations that will help bring voluntary compliance with Title IX, which bars sex discrimination in federally funded education programs.

To enforce the law, however, the Justice Department has authority only to join in private actions, and the Alaska case is the only one now pending in intercollegiate athletics.

The Alaska suit was filed by 1978-79 team members Colleene Pavey, Mary Owen and Robin Greene. Greene will be a returning member of this year's team.

The three sued on Jan. 18, 1979 and obtained a temporary restraining order against the university on grounds it canceled a five-game trip to Hawaii, refused to pay for the trip and required team members to each pay $250 if they wished to do so.

HEW's draft regulations implementing the new law require women to have an equal opportunity to participate in college athletics. The regulations state, however, that unequal expenditure of funds on separate men's and women's teams will not automatically constitute noncompliance with the law.

On that point, HEW Secretary Patricia Harris has promised to produce a policy interpretation of the regulations with a more specific explanation of the government's intent in such cases.

Globetrotters to perform

TWIN FALLS — The basketball wizardry of the Harlem Globetrotters will be coming to Twin Falls Nov. 29.

The international unit of the team will perform that day at 7:30 p.m. at the Twin Falls High School gymnasium.

According to public relations director Bobby Milton, the team will be led by clown prince Twiggy Saunders, comedian Lou Dunbar and dribbling wizard Gator Rivers. The coach is Tex Harrison.

Opponents for the Globetrotters will be the California Chiefs who are traveling with them on this western tour. The team will be coming to Twin Falls from Ricks College in Rexburg and after a night in the Magic Valley will go on to Boise.

Milton said the last time the Globetrotters came to Twin Falls was two years ago.

"There isn't much difference in the tricks that are performed by this team and the national unit," he said. "Everything you see on TV will be included."

Advance tickets for the event sponsored by the athletic club can be purchased at the high school or at the door the night of the game.

Bulcher, Shenk on team

BOISE -- Twyla Bulcher of Jerome and Sue Shenk of Rupert are members of the Boise State University field hockey team which is heading to the national tournament this week.

Bulcher, a senior, has been selected as the most valuable player on the team for the past two years, while Shenk, a junior, is the leading scorer.

The tournament will be held at Princeton University.

YFCA sets marathon

TWIN FALLS — The 15th Annual National Marathon for 1979, sponsored locally by the YFCA, will begin Nov. 26.

The event will feature four divisions for runners as a team. Participants will attempt to complete mileage goals within 16 days or Dec. 11.

The four divisions include:

- Gold, 61 to 120 miles per week.
- Silver, 31 to 60 miles per week.
- Bronze, 16 to 30 miles per week.
- Novice, six to 12 miles per week.

Each runner must reach his maximum for the team to succeed. Miles may be run at any time or any distance.

Teams will consist of 10 to 25 members. Any entry fee of $2 per person will be charged.

Each team meeting mileage requirements will receive a plaque and every runner will receive a certificate.

For more information, contact the YFCA on Elizabeth Boulevard.

Racquetball tourney nears

TWIN FALLS — Monday is the last day to enter the amateur division of Ballbusters' Pre-Holiday Pro-Am Racquetball Tournament.

The event, which will feature both professional and amateur competition, will be held Nov. 30 through Dec. 2. The deadline to enter the pro competition is today.

According to tournament director Bill Perkins, nearly 100 people have entered the tourney as of Tuesday evening. He expects about 150 by the time of the cutoff date.

It will be the first time pros have competed in Twin Falls.

"We'll have people coming here from California, Oregon, and Utah for the professional part of the tourney," he said. "There should be a lot of top-notch action."

Some of the pros who have indicated they will compete include Wayne Wightman of San Diego, the No. 4-ranked amateur in the U.S. who just recently turned pro; John Eggerman of Boise, junior national champ now on the pro circuit; Sheryl Lamper of San Diego; Morgan Sayes and Trace Sayes of Salt Lake City; and Bob Peterson of Boise.

Perkins expects to have 16 in the men's pro division, and 8 to 10 women.

Cash awards of $400 will be awarded to both the first place men's and women's open entry.

In the amateur section, there will be divisions for novice, C, B and A, senior and masters competitors. There also will be junior divisions.

For more information contact Perkins at Ballbusters.

Brown Olympic coach

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — UCLA basketball coach Larry Brown, the former coach of the Denver Nuggets, has been named an assistant coach for the U.S. men's Olympic team next summer in Moscow.

Olympic officials said Tuesday the appointment was made official during U.S. Olympic Committee meetings held last weekend in Dallas.

Japan edges U.S. stars

TOKYO (UPI) — Kinji Shimatani of Japan belted a three-run home run in the bottom of the eighth inning Tuesday to power a Japanese all star team to a 3-2 come-from-behind victory over a combined American and National League all star squad.

Pomerelle open for skiing

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

POMERELLE — There will be skiing available for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Woody Anderson, owner of Pomerelle Ski Resort, said he is opening the resort with crossed fingers and prayers for some more snow.

The smaller of the two chair lifts at the resort begins running today and continues through the weekend.

Pomerelle has about eight inches of snow at the lodge with 12 to 18 inches on the slopes.

Every flake of it has been carefully packed as it has fallen, and runs are in good shape but Anderson says more storms will be needed if the area is to continue operating. If the present supply wears out before additional snow storms, the area may have to shut down after the Thanksgiving holiday and wait for better cover.

"We are calling our snow conditions 'marginal' and they are just that," Anderson said.

He said crews were working Tuesday to pack snow on the loading and unloading ramps. The one lift will give a total four runs for variety. With more snow, the other chair lift will open, but a good heavy snow fall of a couple of feet would be needed. The lodge, rental shop and cafeteria will also open Wednesday.

During the past weekend about 50 or so instructors from the Pomerelle and Magic Mountain ski schools met for an annual two-day clinic on the slopes. Snow was just about perfect on the beginner run where the instructors worked and a storm that continued Saturday afternoon and most of Sunday gave the group about eight inches of new powder for final demonstrations and a few runs of free skiing.

T-N ski column appears Friday

Sun Valley Ski School instructors, Jack Colven, Steve Rath and Ralph Harris put the local areas' instructors through their paces with Lex Kunau and Harold Stanger who serve as co-directors of Pomerelle and Magic ski schools on hand to observe.

The entire ski season may not be too far away. Soldier Mountain received three or four inches of snow in the current storm and is making snow every night and morning. Dave Wheeler, resort official, said it will probably take a week of snow making, unless mother nature lends a hand, before Soldier can open.

Bob Lehman, manager at Magic Mountain, said there is a covering of only about three or four inches there and much more is needed.

Sun Valley snow makers are also going full force these nights and during suitable day-time temperatures. There is currently about 14 inches on the ski runs and while the official opening is still set for Dec. 19, a good snow storm could move that up to a much earlier date.

Freshmen basketball

Stuart, O'Leary score victories

TWIN FALLS — Brock Miller scored 26 points Tuesday afternoon to lead the Robert Stuart freshmen to a 60-37 basketball victory over Burley.

The Bears are now 3-1 on the year.

Miller, hitting from outside the key, was hot the first quarter as the Bears piled up an 18-8 lead. Burley fought back to close it to 28-23 at the half.

But with Oscar Salinas and Mark Mumm contributing to the offense, the Bears took off again and Burley could never get close.

In a Monday game, Stuart rolled past East Minico 44-27 with Miller again leading the way.

It was the second victory for Stuart over East Minico this year. Earlier, it had downed the Rupert school in the season-opening tournament.

This one was no contest as the Bears had a 22-5 halftime lead, and Minico could never recover. Miller scored 14.

In the eighth grade contests, Stuart lost to Wood River 37-25 Monday, but won its first game of the season Tuesday 29-25 over Burley.

The two teams don't play again until next Tuesday when the ninth grade travels to West Minico and the eighth grade goes to Buhl.

Tuesday's ninth grade game

Burley 8 23 31 37
Stuart 18 28 42 60

Burley — Smith 8, Austin 7, Willich 4, Bedke 8, Mussarro 13, Williams 2.

Stuart — Brock Miller 26, Oscar Salinas 8, Mark Mumm 8, Kenny Tuma 2, Tim Van Ostran 2, Greg Snow 2, Cory Ochsner 4, Lanning Morrison 6, and David Slotten 2.

Monday's ninth grade game

E. Minico 5 5 17 27
Stuart 12 22 30 44

E. Minico — Garro 10 Heuza 2, Ferrin 2, Smith 4, Miller 3, Lara 6.

Stuart — Brock Miller 14, Oscar Salinas 6, Mark Mumm 6, Kenny Tuma 6, Tim Van Ostran 2, Greg Snow 4, Cory Ochsner 4, and David Slotten 2.

O'Leary 40, Burley 39

TWIN FALLS — The Vera C. O'Leary Cubs rallied from a five-point half-time deficit Monday afternoon to overcome the Burley freshmen 40-39.

The win upped the Cubs record to 3-1.

Led by some outstanding shooting by guard Brent Standing, O'Leary jumped to a 10-6 halftime lead, but saw that melt away as Burley took a 19-14 intermission margin.

In the second half, Standing and Mike Rice continued to pepper the basket as O'Leary built up a five-point third quarter lead and held on for the narrow victory.

Standing scored 17 in the game, while Rice added 11 to lead the Cubs.

The O'Leary eighth grade also won.

Both teams play today, with the freshmen hosting West Minico at 1 p.m., and the eighth grade playing Buhl immediately following that game.

O'Leary 10 14 30 40
Burley 6 19 25 39

O'Leary — Brad Kittridge 4, Brent Standing 17, Mike Rice 11, Robert Champlin 2, Don Reynolds 4, Steve Root 2.

Burley McCord 7, Smith 12, Conrad 2, Austin 4, Willich 2, Bedke 8, Wall 2, and Massorro 2.

Firings

Montana, New Mexico, Illinois football coaches dismissed

MISSOULA, Mont. (UPI) — University of Montana football coach Gene Carlson and his four assistant coaches were fired Monday.

Assistant Coach Pokey Allen said the firing was prompted by the Grizzlies' poor record this season. Montana finished at 2-5 in the Big Sky Conference and 3-7 overall.

Carlson could not be reached for comment.

Carlson was named head coach in december 1976 after one year as interim coach. In his four years at the Missoula school, he compiled a 16-25 record.

University president Richard Bowers said the school will begin a national search in an effort to hire a new head football coach by December. The school wants a coach with proven success on the college level, he said.

Allen said the Grizzlies' 38-21 loss to conference champion Montana State on Nov. 3 may have been the death knell for Carlson's tenure as coach.

"As soon as we lost to the Bobcats this year, I thought they'd fire us," he said.

The Big Sky teams are, for the most part, fairly evenly matched, Allen said, adding, "we were in every game." He said, however, that the Grizzlies are at a competitive disadvantage because of UM's practice of starting the season a week later than other Big Sky teams in an effort to save money on housing the players in school dormitories.

Allen had no complaints about the individual performances of the Grizzlies this year.

Moeller let go

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Gary Moeller, whose football team won only six games in his three seasons as head coach at the University of Illinois, was fired Tuesday by the University of Illinois Athletic Association.

John Hummell chairman of the association, said following a three-hour meeting Moeller was released from his duties effective Dec. 1 in "the best interests of the football program and overall progress of the athletic association."

Hummell, who said the search for a new head coach would begin immediately, said Moeller would be paid for the final two years of his contract.

The decision to fire Moeller came after the head coach and four of his players made 11th hour appearances before the association to try to persuade officials to retain him.

But reports indicated Moeller was told by new Athletic Director Neal Stoner on Sunday of the decision to fire him.

"The best interests of the football program and the overall progress of the athletic association's goals are the primary considerations in arriving at this decision," Hummell said. "The association will honor the contractual obligations of his contract.

Moeller could not be reached for immediate comment.

"For reasons related to the comprehensive program performance and development, it is my recommendation to the athletic association board of directors to not retain head football Coach Gary Moeller for the 1980 and 1981 seasons," said Stoner, who replaced former athletic director Cecil Coleman Nov. 1.

Mondt out at N.M.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — The University of New Mexico announced Tuesday it would not renew the contract of head football coach Bill Mondt, who had guided the Lobos to a 31-36-1 record in his six years at the school.

Mondt's contract expires Feb. 1, 1980.

Mondt's Lobos have a 5-6 record so far this year, with one game remaining this Saturday against Wyoming.

Michigan coach hits 'unfair' dismissals

CHICAGO (UPI) — Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler Tuesday urged the American Football Coaches Association to take stronger action to make universities honor multi-year contracts with football coaches.

Schembechler made the suggestion as athletic officials at the University of Illinois fired Coach Gary Moeller with two years left on his five-year contract.

Moeller was an assistant to Schembechler at Michigan before going to Illinois in 1977 to become head coach. His Illini teams have won only six games.

Schembechler said AFCA funds should be directed to help coaches hire attorneys to make sure contracts are fair and to ensure the universities honor the terms of the agreements.

"As a trustee of the American Football Coaches Association, I think we need to make universities honor these contracts," Schembechler said. "I think we ought to be in a position to help the coaches with a lawyer to see to it (the contracts) written properly."

Schembechler was critical of the University of Illinois for failing to live up to its promise to Moeller to give him five years to rebuild the Illini football program.

"When Gary took over, there were very few good players," he said. "It was obvious that it couldn't be rebuilt in three years. It would take five years. I told him he would be a contender in five years."

Redskins, Eagles rooting for the Oilers to win

DETROIT — The ranks of the Houston Oiler's faithful, who eagerly anticipate tomorrow's nationally televised invasion of Dallas, will include temporary booster chapters opened in Washington and Philadelphia and headed by Jack Pardee and Dick Vermeil.

That's because both the Redskins and Eagles will profit immensely in terms of the NFC's hottest race, the three-way affair in the East, where events in Dallas have taken a sudden turn for the worse.

The Cowboys, seeking to avoid their disastrous third straight defeat, will encounter a fired up Oiler team that doesn't want to waste its share of the AFC Central lead that was gained by the Chargers upset of the Steelers.

The Oiler offensive line has keyed the team's scoreboard resurgence which has meshed perfectly with a stingy and opportunistic defense. While Dan Pastorini suffered an eye injury against the Bengals, he is not apt to miss this game which Oiler players, management and fans have been pointing to all season long.

Consequently, both the Redskins and Eagles will spend Thanksgiving afternoon rooting for the Oilers. That's because a Cowboy defeat would leave the division lead in Washington and Philadelphia.

After the Oilers, the Cowboys will encounter the Giants, Eagles and Redskins. They're favored in all three, as well as being a 2-point pick over the Oilers. However, it's 6-1 against the Cowboys winning all four games, even though they are a 10-point choice over the Giant team capable of being a spoiler, three over Philadelphia and four against Washington at home in the season finale.

Actually it is the Redskins who have an excellent chance even though it's 8-1 against them winning all four of their games. They visit the revenge-minded Giants this week and rate as a solid 4-point choice. Then it's the Packers, Bengals and the closing appearance in Dallas. The Skins remain a solid favorite over Green Bay and a touchdown pick over the Bengals. They will be a 4-point underdog in Dallas. Obviously, the Cowboys' recent slide has begun to be reflected in the numbers.

The Eagles, somewhat secure in the knowledge that the club holds its own post-season fate in its hands because of the return match with Dallas, are still encountering the longest shot, and it's 12-1 against Philly sweeping their final four games. The Eagles will be a 4-point favorite in Green Bay and an 8-point choice against Detroit. However, the schedule gets a bit tougher for the final two weeks of the season as indicated by the fact the Eagles will be 3-point underdogs against both Dallas at home and on the road in Houston.

Tampa Bay fans will watch the Bears-Lions clash that opens the traditional holiday doubleheader with a great deal of interest. If the Lions are able to upset the streaking Bears, then the Bucs will claim the NFC's first playoff berth with a second consecutive win over Chicago the following Sunday. The Bears are a 15-1 underdog in terms of winning their last four games, even though they are a 6-point favorite against Detroit, and are favored over Green Bay and St. Louis.

On the other hand, the Bucs are a solid choice to make the playoffs. That's because they will be favored over all four of their final regular season opponents, the Vikings, Bears, 49ers and Chiefs.

NFL: (Thursday) Chicago 6 over Detroit, Dallas 1 over Houston, (Sunday) Washington 4 over N.Y. Giants, New Orleans-Atlanta even, St. Louis-Cincinnati even, Tampa Bay 3 over Minnesota, New England 10 over Buffalo, Pittsburgh 10 over Cleveland, Philadelphia 8 over Green Bay, Los Angeles 6 over San Francisco, San Diego 10 over Kansas City, Denver 4 over Oakland, Miami 6 over Baltimore, (Monday) Seattle 6 over N.Y. Jets

COLLEGE FOOTBALL: (Friday) Houston 17 over Texas Tech, Florida State 19 over Florida, (Saturday) Clemson 1 over South Carolina, Tennessee 3 over Kentucky, Maryland 6 over Virginia, North Carolina 13 over Duke, Oklahoma 1 over Nebraska, Missouri 10 over Kansas, Mississippi State 4 over Mississippi, Oklahoma State 4 over Iowa State, Texas 11 over Baylor, Texas A&M 9 over Texas Christian, Colorado 6 over Kansas State, Southern California 15 over UCLA, Oregon 15 over Oregon State, Louisiana State-Tulane even, Arkansas 16 over Southern Methodist, Arizona State 4 over Arizona, Notre Dame 10 over Miami (Fla.) at Tokyo, Georgia Tech over Georgia

NEW YORK (UPI) — While Alabama's bowl picture remains partly cloudy, the Crimson Tide's ratings forecast is still perfectly clear.

Bear Bryant's Tide easily held down the No. 1 spot as the top seven rungs were left unchanged after the 11th week of balloting by United Press International's Board of Coaches.

After recording an easy 30-0 victory over Miami (Fla.) Saturday, the Tide received 32 of a possible 42 first-place votes to easily outdistance second-ranked Nebraska, a 34-3 winner over Iowa State last weekend.

But Alabama still needs a win over Auburn Dec. 1 to be sure of a Sugar Bowl bid. A loss by Alabama would send Georgia to New Orleans and could conceivably keep the nation's No. 1 team out of a bowl game.

However, this is not likely. Georgia asked the Southeastern Conference Monday to be relieved of its obligation to represent the league in the Sugar Bowl if the Bulldogs, now 5-5, wind up with a losing record.

"I think this will clear the air so we can direct our total concentration on preparing for our state championship contest with our traditional rival Georgia Tech," said Georgia Coach Vince Dooley. "This action should lay to rest all questions concerning Georgia's position regarding the Sugar Bowl."

"The essence of this accumulative action," SEC Commissioner Boyd McWhorter said Monday, "is that if Auburn beats Alabama and if Georgia Tech beats Georgia, the Sugar Bowl Association has agreed to select the Southeastern Conference representative for its Jan. 1, 1980 game."

Ohio State, which secured the Big Ten title and a trip to the Rose Bowl with a dramatic 18-15 triumph over Michigan, retained its No. 3 ranking and triggered a celebration in the streets of Columbus that led to nearly 150 arrests.

Southern Cal's Trojans, who will face the Buckeyes in Pasadena if they beat UCLA next week, held the fourth position despite being idle this week and Orange Bowl-bound Florida State remained No. 5 after a 66-17 rout of Memphis State.

Texas, a 35-10 winner over Texas Christian, kept its hold on the sixth position and Oklahoma, which managed a 24-22 victory over Missouri, remained in seventh. Arkansas moved up a notch to eighth after a 22-10 triumph over Texas A&M.

Coaches pick Wilson top quarterback...

NEW YORK (UPI) — Charles White of Southern California and Billy Sims of Oklahoma, the two leading candidates for the Heisman Trophy, were named Tuesday to the All-America team selected by the American Football Coaches Association.

Both running backs are repeaters from last year's team.

White, the second leading rusher in NCAA history, earned Player of the Year honors from the coaches associaton while Sims, the Player of the Year in 1978, is the holder of the Big Eight rushing record.

Others named to the offensive squad were running back Vagas Ferguson of Notre Dame, quarterback Marc Wilson of Brigham Young, split end Ken Margerum of Stanford, tight end Junior Miller of Nebraska, center Jim Richter of North Carolina State, guards Brad Budde of Southern California and Jim Bunch of Alabama and tackles Melvin Jones of Houston and Greg Kolenda of Arkansas. Richter also made the team last year.

Defensive backs Ken Easley of UCLA and Johnnie Johnson of Texas led the vote getters on defense. Rounding out the defensive unit are Roland James of Tennessee, linebackers George Cumby of Oklahoma, David Hodge of Houston and Mike Singletary of Baylor and linemen Bruce Clark of Penn State, Hugh Green of Pittsburgh, Curtis Greer of Michigan, Steve McMichael of Texas and Ron Simmons of Florida State.

A Clemson Johnson was the repeat selections from last year's team.

TOWN & COUNTRY REALTORS

UNSEEN FACTORS

When you consider buying a home in a new locality, you'll want to know as much about the town and neighborhood as possible. Much of this information you can get from "eyeballing" the area, but there are important factors which the eye cannot see.

For example, local property taxes, public services, public transportation, hospitals churches, community facilities. What are the zoning restrictions? Are there any unusual deed restrictions common to the area on how you might use, alter, or expand your property? What are the future prospects for the neighborhood?

A good, local Realtor can be a quarry of such information. He should have a feeling born of the familiarity for the specific neighborhoods in his territory. Level with him at the outset about what you want and he'll do his darndest to help you find it. That's what he's there for.

☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆

Is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at TOWN & COUNTRY REALTORS, 507 Main Ave. W. Twin Falls. Phone: 733-0716. 1120 Main, Buhl, Phone: 543-4441. We're here to help!

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The professor's two-club opening was artificial and forcing. The student would have made the negative response of two diamonds, but West bid first and took away the need for him to bid. Then the professor jumped to four spades to end the bidding at the normal contract.

West opened the king of clubs and continued with the ace. By that time the student got up from the table to watch his mentor operate. He almost jumped with surprise when the professor ruffed the second club and led a low trump. Then he did jump with delight when West won with the ace. A second trump trick had to be lost to East later on, but the game contract was in.

There was legerdemain or other magic involved in the professor's play. He has just made a well-known (among experts anyway) safety play and it had worked.

There was no legitimate way to avoid the loss of two spade tricks. If spades broke 3-2 that is all the spade tricks that would be lost.

Suppose they were to break 4-1. Three tricks would be lost unless the spade ace were singleton and the safety play made, so the professor had made it.

Jerome OK's ag-residential growth area

By RAY SULLIVAN
Times-News writer

JEROME — A proposed 16-square-mile area south and east of Jerome was approved for an agricultural-residential (A-2) growth area at Monday's Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission meeting.

The area is located on some of the poorest quality farm land in the county. It originally included another 25 square miles north and east of the city of Jerome that ran along Five Mile West Road south to the Snake River Canyon Rim and three miles north of Appleton Road.

The proposed A-2 area finally agreed on is bounded on the north by the proposed city growth area running north along Appleton Road and following the southern boundary of Interstate 80-North. It runs west to Two Mile West Road, then straight south on that road for the western boundary to the canyon rim.

Along the east it drops south from I-80N at the junction of Three Mile East Road for a mile, runs west two miles and cuts back south a mile to the canyon rim, which forms the southern boundary.

It was emphasized by commission members the area is not intended to prevent residential development from all other farm land but to concentrate it there, protecting prime farm land from being developed and limit growth impact as much as possible so it doesn't drive up the cost of providing necessary services.

The decision came with Minidoka County Planning and Zoning Administrator David Abo and commission member Ned Horner on hand to explain aspects of that county's comprehensive plan.

Abo said the hardest job is to educate people to the need for separating such areas to allow incompatible uses, such as subdivisions and intensive farming operations like feedlots, to co-exist in the county.

He also pointed out restrictions implied by setting up a proposed zone can be waived, if that procedure is allowed in the zoning ordinance.

For example, Abo said, in Minidoka County a written waiver signed by all parties concerned will allow a required 1,000-foot buffer zone between subdivisions and intensive farm operations to be dropped.

That allowance may have to be eliminated from the ordinance as the county grows in population, Abo said, but for the moment it fits the county's needs.

The Jerome Commission did not tackle the question of a buffer zone but agreed to take up the whole question of how to deal with intensive farm operations at next Monday's meeting.

Board member Dick Critser added that with an east wind even a two-mile buffer zone, mentioned by the state Department of Health and Welfare's environmental section, might not be large enough some days, much less 1,000 feet.

Asked how Minidoka set its buffer zone for intensive farm operations and subdivisions at 1,000 feet, Abo said he believed that limit was carried over from the county's old zoning ordinance.

Before tackling that question next week, along with beginning to work on definition of terms, the Ccommission will hold its regular monthly meeting. The final plat for God's Country Subdivision southeast of Jerome is scheduled to come before the Commission. Although a moratorium on subdivisions won't end until Dec. 31, the commission can act on this proposal since it was begun before the moratorium went into effect Oct. 1.

Traveling poet looks for unknown

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

BLISS — "Writing has always been talking about the untalkable," William Joyce says as he sits behind a simple, wood table.

A poet and novelist, Joyce arrived in Bliss to introduce kids to expressing themselves on paper. In addition to spelling and grammar, he talks of honesty, self realization and goals.

People learn not to express fears of loneliness, anger or death, and so these emotions are usually discussed only in writing, claims Joyce. It's this tool for expression that Joyce tries to introduce to students throughout the U.S. in a program funded by the National Endowment for the Arts.

"I guess I try to get them (students) to take their own experiences and emotions seriously," Joyce says.

He lights a cigarette and continues, "I don't know if there's anything special I do — just give them the feeling that they can write anything they want to."

His thought is distracted as a high-school-age girl enters the room to discuss a poem she's written.

Joyce reads through it out loud. He likes it, but tells her she's too involved with making words rhyme.

"In trying to rhyme you lose the intensity of what you're saying," Joyce says.

The poem is about love — perhaps the toughest subject in writing, Joyce says. They talk for several more minutes. He asks for a copy of the poem, and the young girl leaves.

"I'm not so interested in technique as in the depth of exploring the unknown," Joyce says, adding that through writing, students often discover things about themselves that perhaps they've always known but never admitted.

To get students started, Joyce often talks about himself during his first day of class. He did this Monday as he began a two-week session in Bliss.

"A lot of these things they've already lived," explains Joyce. "But, for example, they've probably never met an adult who confessed his loneliness. So I might read them one of my poems."

"You don't just tell them (about writing)," Joyce say. "You have to show them, maybe tell a story."

And Joyce has plenty of them.

Although he considers Texas home right now, Joyce has traveled throughout the world, living at various times in Amsterdam, London and St. Lucia in the West Indies.

One story he tells takes place in St. Lucia.

While living there he unknowingly created fear among villagers when he killed a seven-foot fer-de-lance, considered the world's fifth most poisonous snake, and then let out a fib that he'd cooked the snake and eaten it.

Since the islanders worship the fer-de-lance as a protective diety, Joyce had to promise he wouldn't eat any more.

Joyce began his writing career covering sports for a television station in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. He's written countless magazine articles, short stories and poems appearing in about 90 publications, including the Chicago Sun-Times, ROTO Sunday Supplememnts, Mademoiselle, the Ohio Review and Western Humanities Review.

He left the television station to take a 9,000 mile motorcycle trip with Jaspar Jenkins, noted depressionist artist and museum curator. The pair wrote about and photographed much of Central and South America for several magazines.

However, not all of Joyce's career has been smooth.

When returning from the South American trip, Joyce and Jenkins were trapped in Panama by rioting, anti-American students. The literary duo came across the crowd listening to a militant speaker, and began photographing the scene. However, they were spotted and much of the crowd descended on them.

By throwing Hershey chocolate bars and their last dollar bills into the air, Joyce and Jenkins created enough confusion to escape up a side street.

For the last four years, Joyce has taught as a traveling poet-in-residence. Host school districts pick up about ten percent of Joyce's salary ($1,150 at Bliss) and the rest is paid by state programs funded by the national arts grant.

"It's a way for me to do what I want," Joyce says, his face only hinting at a smile. "I don't know so much about other people, but I haven't met very many people who were really happy with their job, I am."

Joyce has taught in Idaho, Texas, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

He prefers smaller communities.

"In suburbs, people seem to think that art is their due," Joyce explains. "There you're talking about families with a combined income of $50,000 or more. The kids never see their parents having to struggle — just go along taking life for granted.

"In places like Elk River (Joyce's last job), and probably here, it's different. Kids grow up watching their parents chop wood and such," Joyce continues. "Here kids might have no conception of art, and maybe they're better off."

Because of this attitude, students in small towns are often more receptive to Joyce's work, he claims. And talent seems plentiful.

"In Urbana, Ohio, they had a kid labeled special education and in with mentally retarded youngsters and the like. He wrote some amazing things," remembers Joyce. "Basically they had him selected for good material."

Joyce admits that his work probably did little to change the young boy's situation.

"I guess all I hope for is that after I'm done, a kid can look back and say to himself, 'at least for five hours in a two-week period, I was honest with myself'," Joyce says. "The other thing I believe is that it's important for them to value their own lives."

Gooding includes impact area in new map

GOODING — The City Council approved a new city zoning map Monday night.

The map describes present limits and zoning areas within the city's impact area.

"Basically all we did was zone the impact area," said councilman Autry Haws, who helped develop the new map.

Gooding adopted a zone of city impact surrounding the city limits about five years ago. However, a revised zoning map hadn't been developed until this year.

According to Haws, only minor zoning changes were made when revising Gooding's zoning map.

"I know there was one small area that had been classified as agricultural and was changed to residential," he said. "That was because there are mostly houses there."

The housing area referred to by Haws is located in the southwest corner of Gooding.

Council members also discussed trial tests being scheduled as the Council continues its search for a new computer system needed for billing city residents and filing records.

Two bids from manufacturers have been received by the city, but the Council plans to test each unit before proposing a sale.

Bids received from I.B.M. and Burroughs, Inc. appear equal in cost, about $20,000. Salesmen from both companies have been asked to arrange demonstrations on systems already in use in Idaho.

Once city clerk Imogene Cahoon and other city employees try out the systems, the Council will make a selection. However, no target date for the purchase has been set.

The city's present system is malfunctioning and outdated, according to a council report.

The Council also discussed assisting with repairs on a water line outside city limits during a regular meeting Monday. The pipe runs south out of Gooding where it services ten families who have asked for assistance in maintaining the line. The water main is linked to the city system.

It was decided that since the water line was beyond city limits, Gooding is not responsible for it's maintenance. However, the line has suffered failures at various times and council members expressed a desire to provide some assistance, although no definite proposal was made.

Last year the line froze and ruptured, severing service to the ten families. Emergency aid was provided by neighboring farmer Ralph Faulkner, who connected the homes to his well. It is feared a similar problem may occur this year if the line isn't up-graded.

In other action the Council held a public hearing on a proposed variance to city building codes. The request involved a roof modification to a building on 5th Street. No objection to the proposed exception was made, and the Council granted the variance.

The request was made by Harry Patterson of Gooding.

The Council also approved a list of city licences for 1980. The list includes business and liquor permits.

Wood River Valley residents rap Ketchum rail line abandonment

By SUSAN McBRYANT
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Wood River Valley residents want to keep their railroad line.

The overwhelming sentiment of local residents at a public hearing of the Idaho Department of Transportation Monday was one of strong opposition to the abandonment of the Richfield-Ketchum branch line of the Union Pacific Railroad.

DOT planner Ronald Kerr prefaced the hearing by explaining the criteria which would be considered in determining the viability of a given branch line.

Kerr also said that although the Department of Transportation had not recommended rehabilitation for the Blaine County line, the department was not encouraging its abandonment.

Originally known as the Oregon Short Line, the Richfield-Ketchum line has serviced the area as a passenger, mail, and freight line since 1881.

Local lumber and mining executives led the plea for maintaining the line by pointing out the greater efficiency of rail transportation for moving their products. They further indicated their need for delivery docks in Ketchum to increase their receiving capacity.

Phil Cash, president of Cash Industries, said he planned to ship 15 to 20 cars of barite per week from Hailey to Texas. His company has been operating in the Wood River Valley for eight months.

James Lenahan of Houston, Texas, representing NL Baroid Petroleum Services, said his company has invested over $3 million in environmental and geographical studies in Blaine County.

Finds have indicated large deposits of barite that could sustain production of approximately 50,000 tons of the ore yearly. The operation the company is planning would require the shipment of an estimated 600 carloads of barite yearly from Blaine County to Texas, he said.

Lenahan emphasized the monetary gain available to the county. Should his company develop here, approximately 35 new jobs would be created.

But Lenahan noted that the elimination of the Ketchum branch line would preclude the feasibility of a large-scale mining project.

The Department of Transportation will hold similar hearings in Boise and Moscow next week to consider other branch line recommendations.

Manslaughter charges dropped

BOISE (UPI) — Involuntary manslaughter charges against Air Force Major Kevin Mullen have been dismissed for lack of evidence.

Mullen had been charged in connection with the death of Air Force Capt. Eva Lentz, whose body was found July 24 in a bathtub in her Mountain Home residence.

Magistrate John Sellman dismissed the charge, saying the evidence was insufficient to show that a crime had been committed in Elmore County.

Mullen was charged after a coroner's jury in September heard evidence that he had left the woman in a bathtub at her home on July 18 with shower water running on her. He said he put the 30 year-old woman under the shower because he could not awaken her.

Vietnam War blues: Still haunting after all these years

This is the second time since I left Vietnam 11½ years ago that I have tried to write coherently about that experience.

Like most words written about it, or the movies and television programs aired, I feel this will be another disjointed effort to express the emotions of that time. But a strong case of Veterans Day blues hit me last week, and I decided to make the effort again, no matter how it might come out.

It has been five years since the South Vietnamese government fell to the North Vietnamese rulers and America shipped its last boys home from there in body bags.

Yet the memories haven't faded. The recent media blitz has seen to that.

In fact, it makes me laugh with pain to see that the Hollywood movies, television specials and printed articles have even come close to elevating the military veterans of Vietnam to the status of near-heroes, a recognition they didn't receive when they returned home.

My own example of that concerns a torn, faded sweatshirt I have worn for more than a decade now. It is imprinted with the logo, "3rd Marine Division Vietnam." Only recently have I attracted obvious attention when I wear it. There is even respect in the viewers' eyes afterward. Before, people would look at that wording and duck their heads, look past me or awkwardly strain to keep their eyes above chin-level while we conversed. It was eerie. I felt like a ghost.

I came in contact with some of those ghostly images again this Veterans Day. It had taken me 11 years, but I finally picked up the telephone to find a few people I had served with back then. I located four former apparitions.

In keeping with America's split over the Vietnam War, I discovered not suprisingly that the five of us paralleled that pattern. We agreed our efforts were a bloody waste, although we are divided in our beliefs on whether America should have fought there; two even took part in antiwar demonstrations upon returning home.

Okla C. Spence was the first man I pinned down. We became friends in Yokosuka, Japan, recuperating from grenade wounds received in the same firefight. A private contractor splicing telephone cables in Virginia today, he has a wife and two children.

That may not sound extraordinary, but it is when you know he once worried that his wound would leave him sterile.

I also found Tim Whitehead in Virginia, a lifer in the marines. A close friend who was not exactly in love with the service when I knew him, I was flabbergasted to hear he was a master sergeant.

He and his wife want to buy a piece of "God's Country" on an Arkansas farm when his 20 years are served, only seven years away now, and raise their two children.

Pernell Aikens is still in Jacksonville, Fla. He holds a special place in my heart. Pernell inadvertently kept my head from resembling swiss cheese when he ran in between me and an exploding grenade just trying to get out of the way. We had a good laugh over the telegram the marines sent my parents informing them I had been wounded by a "hostile grenade."

Pernell is divorced and thinking about moving to California to be near his ex-wife and their two children, whom he has not seen since 1972. A private building contractor now, he angrily limped away from the marines 37 days early back in 1968 because they would not give him a medical discharge. He receives disability from the Veterans Administration for life because of his wound.

Mike Watson moved from Wyoming to Denver and is managing an auto parts store. Watson stood out from the first time I met him the night we flew to boot camp.

He was in a derelict Denver hotel with two hometown buddies, drunkenly throwing two-foot high hallway ashtrays off the fifth or seventh — or maybe it was the eighth — floor, and laughing maniacally in the high-pitched squeak of a voice he had in 1966. Mike is divorced and still occasionally sorts out Vietnam's cause-and-effect relationship on his life.

In some ways, I am trying to do the same thing. The war, as my friends know, is an obsession with me. I refuse to forget it, to push it into my unconscious.

While I realize I go overboard on the topic, I also see many people ducking to avoid the responsibility of that lesson entirely. I cringe when I talk with high school or college students who can't even place Kent State, LBJ, Lt. Rusty Calley, the My Lai massacre, Khe Sahn, An Khe, Pleiku, the Tet offensive of 1968 or other landmarks of that war. It is as unthinkable to me as not knowing about the concentration camps of World War II or the dropping of two atomic bombs on Japanese cities.

What, I wonder, is being said in history classes? Where have people been since Vietnam became a media darling again? What have they done to inform themselves about those events, so that we don't have to painfully learn those lessons over again because we forgot them?

I don't recommend anyone joining me in my obsession, but I think more knowledge about the subject cannot hurt anyone. For people wanting to learn more, I recommend reading any or all of the following books:

"The Monk and the Marines," by Philip Kingry; "12, 20 & 5 A Doctor's Year in Vietnam," by John A. Parrish; "Letters From Vietnam," edited by Bill Adler; "Born on the Fourth of July," by Ron Kovic; "Dispatches," by Michael Herr; "Street Without Joy" and "Last Reflections on a War," both by Bernard B. Fall; "A Rumor of War," by Philip Caputo; and "Home From the War, Vietnam Veterans, Neither Victims nor Executioners," by Robert Jay Lifton; "The Best and the Brightest," by David Halberstam; "The Pentagon Papers," a formerly secret collection of papers on how the Vietnam involvement grew, released by Daniel Ellsberg.

Calling it quits

They call themselves the "Last Man Club," a group of 106 men who banded together on Armistice Day Nov. 11, 1918, to celebrate the end of the "Great War." But their numbers have dwindled to only four over the 42 years, so they decided Nov. 9 would be their last meeting. In Medford, Ore., O.W. Matheny, Charles Myers, Otto DeJarnett and Clarence Coon (from left to right) uncorked the cognac that had been present at every annual meeting for 42 years, sipped the smooth liquid and remembered all those yesterdays one last time.

Postal retirees honored

JEROME — Four Jerome postal workers were honored Saturday at a reception and dinner in their honor.

Postal spokeswoman Charlotte Bell said the four were honored at a social hour and dinner at Wood Cafe in Jerome for all past and present U.S. postal employees.

The retirees and the number of years of service are Calvin Neal, 31, Leo Coates, 29, Frank Matthews, 28, and Merle Wilson, 22.

Post office expansion

KETCHUM — The Ketchum City Post Office has outgrown its present A-frame building and regional postal planners now want to build a new facility which would cover a full city block.

Located at the north end of main street, the present post office is "very, very crowded and very inadequate" according to Ketchum postmaster John McDonald. He said a new site has not been selected, but district manager R.S. Greenberg has indicated a full city block will be needed.

Post office officials are considering a 46,000 square foot site which would provide room for a 7,100 square foot building, 42 parking spaces and approximately 8,000 square feet of delivery area for the large postal semi-trucks. A larger lobby would be featured in the new building along with 2,700 lock boxes.

Currently new residents wait up to 9 months for a post office box, and general delivery lines jam the lobby.

A single facility of this size is not compatible with downtown planning in Ketchum, but the size of the new post office is necessary to allow room for growth.

Because it is a federal agency, the post office has the right of eminent domain. McDonald said, however, he hopes the post office and the city could reach agreement regarding location and size of the new facility.

The regional planning office considered combining the Sun Valley and Ketchum post offices together four years ago but met considerable opposition. The proposed new facility would house the Ketchum office only.

The Ketchum Planning and Zoning Commission has been invited to make recommendations on the new proposal before postal officials take action.

Mistletoe Mart planned

HAILEY — The Elementary Children Helping Organization (ECHO) is making final preparation for its second annual Mistletoe Mart to be held at the Hailey elementary gym Dec. 1 at 10 a.m.

ECHO, an independent group of elementary school mothers, gives its earning to the Bellevue and Hailey elementary schools for prescribed usage. Last year the Mistletoe Mart grossed over $1,500, which was divided between the two schools for library books and carpeting. This year's fund will go toward the purchase of film projectors, art tools and playground equipment.

ECHO has worked with district superintendent Dick Jones as well as Claude Ballard and Ellen Morrical, Bellevue and Hailey elementary principals, in planning the Mart. ECHO chairman Connie Nelson said they had received optimum cooperation in determining how to raise and disperse the funds.

Local merchants have donated materials to make items to sell at the Mart, and three live Christmas trees have been donated by the Intermountain Landscape Co. to be decorated and sold.

This year's Mart will be divided into different specialty items. These will include a toy shop with handmade wooden items, a Christmas booth featuring wheat and husk wreaths, a men's shop and a plant shop. A special attraction this year will be the children's shopping spree, where elementary school children can buy Christmas gifts for their families. No item in this booth will exceed $1.

4-H awards program

TWIN FALLS — A program honoring 4-H clubs from the Magic Valley will be held here Friday, Jerome County Extention Agent Bob Ohlensehlen has announced.

Ohlensehlen said the Idaho Pride and Community Pride awards will be handed out at the Holiday Inn beginning at 10 a.m.

Keynote speaker will be state senator Larry Craig, R-Midvale, a candidate for Rep. Steve Symms' seat in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Ohlensehlen said the clubs will present their projects, followed by awards to the top clubs. Following will be a buffet luncheon at the Holiday Inn, he said, and a skating party will follow in the afternoon.

Drill instructor has family in line

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — It's good to have friends in high places, but it doesn't necessarily help if that place is in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Especially if it's your brother who is the drill instructor.

"I still can't believe they're here," Sgt. Garland Copeland, 24, said of his younger brother Christopher, 19, and two cousins, Eric and Talmadge, both 18.

The four, all from Virginia, are currently assigned to the Marine Corps' San Diego Recruit Training Depot. The three Copeland recruits, though in a different platoon, are under the command of the older Copeland who bears the rank of staff sergeant.

A little fraternal affection could no doubt help smooth some of the sore spots awaiting a recruit in boot camp, but Sgt. Copeland said he stands for none of it.

"I didn't ask to have them in my platoon and they're not," the sergeant said. "I don't want them getting special treatment and I wouldn't want anyone to think I'm giving it to them."

Chris Copeland, 19, concurs. He says his brother treats him "just like any other drill instructor on the job."

"When we're here it's strictly a private-sergeant relationship between him and the three of us. With my cousins and me, it's a private-to-private relationship."

The four have never taken leave together, but Chris Copeland said even off-base their relationship would remain essentially the same.

"It will be a brother-to-brother and cousin-to-cousin relationship, but I'll still respect Garland. After all, he is the oldest."

Pvt. Copeland said he joined the Marine Corps with his 18-year-old cousins under the "Buddy Program" that allowed them to go through boot camp together. The three are set to graduate Wednesday.

Sgt. Copeland graduated from boot camp in 1972, when his three relatives "were waist-high to me."

"When I came home on leave we'd play basketball or shoot pool," the drill instructor said.

Soccer fever catchy

By MIKE PRATER
Times-News sports writer

JEROME — When a sports fan mentions the word soccer, it usually means Pele', the New York Cosmos or the Tampa Bay Rowdies.

But to 270 elementary children in Jerome, soccer means spending Saturday mornings with your friends playing the game and a year end all-star tournament.

In an effort to entertain Jerome's younger students, the Jerome Recreation Department set up a soccer league for boys and girls in the first through six grades.

The program started off with a two-week training period before a six-game schedule was introduced to the kids. Following the season's final game, an all-star game was set up for the finest players.

One of the major organizers of the league was Rev. Ray Wright. Wright had coached the game in the professional ranks before settling down in Jerome.

"When the subject of a soccer program was first mentioned I had no idea what to expect. But I think a great deal about the sport and got involved in the early training stages," said Wright.

Wright feels the early part of the program was the most important. He explained that most of the kids had never played the game or had any experience of any sort.

But in his eyes, he felt the kids progressed really well and from a coaching standpoint sees a few with the natural talent and the ability to play the game very well.

"This whole idea of a program like this was great. The kids really enjoyed it, it was successful and everybody involved had a lot of fun. I definitely see this as an ongoing event every year," said Wright.

One of the adult members who also got involved as a coach was Kurt Bartholomew.

Bartholomew had absolutly no experience in the sport, but admits he got into it for the enjoyment and to help the kids.

"As far as I am concerned, this is the greatest sport in the world," he said. "I can't even describe the experience I had seeing these kids enjoy themselves like they did. You can really get into it and there isn' a worry in the world about anything. You can just jump in and enjoy."

Bartholomew took the whole idea very seriously when it came to game time.

Everything from pre-game warmups and preparation, down to the final pep talk.

According to everybody involved, the whole experience has been gratifying from the beginning to the end. Wright believes everybody learned the game and the aspect from a winning and losing standpoint.

"Of course I am biased, coming from a soccer background, but I definitely think this is the best sport in the world and an ideal situation for the kids. There is no injury problem, no stress on the importance of winning or losing, but there is an overall great experience," said Wright.

The best experience for some of the players was the end of the year all-star game.

Approximetley 30 of the more talented boys and girls competed in the event last Saturday.

Coaches from the 14 different There's a rotten apple in every bucket," said Norman Royland, the Wagon Wheel's owner. "I wish there was some way they could screen them a little better. Some are good but some just get through."

Royland said the Salvation Army usually sends less than five families a month to his motel.

The players were Jerome's best, but sometimes the action was confusing during the all-star game which ended in a tie

Youth to bowl for disease

JEROME — Jerome area youngsters and adults will be competing Friday in a Cystic Foundation Bowl-a-thon.

According to Chairman Morris Vandiver, the entry fee is $1.75, with persons of any age welcome to help raise money to fight the disease.

Winners in this event can go on to compete for state prizes including a Magnavox AM/FM stereo, 19-inch portable color TV and an Odyssey computer video game.

Those who are sponsoring bowlers will pledge a penny a pin. Sheets for the sponsors can be obtained at all JeFome schools, the EIA office, bowling alley, North Country Store and the Youth Center.

Those who receive the most donations will receive the prizes. First place is a 12-inch black and white TV, second a cassette recorder with AM/FM radio, third a AM/FM pocket radio and fourth a bowling ball.

All of those who are able to obtain 20 sponsors will receive a Cystic Fibrosis "I did it" t-shirt, while those getting 30 sponsors receive an "I did it" windbreaker. Both will be awarded to those topping the 30 mark.

When those who will take part have their sponsor sheets filled in, they should be turned in to the bowling alley. The amount of money each sponsor will pay will be determined by the total number of pins for three games.

Bowling will begin at noon and continue until 6 p.m. Nov. 23.

Any pledge money should be turned in on or before Dec. 15. Prizes will then be awarded accordingly.

Sun Valley sets swap

KETCHUM — The Sun Valley Ski Swap opens its doors Saturday and Sunday.

The swap, a major fund raising event for the Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation, will run from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. at the Sun Valley Inn Lower Ballroom.

Rec district offers weight training

JEROME — Weight training, aerobic dance and adult art are offered by the Jerome Recreation District.

Mike Pepper, district director, offered these explanations about each program:

• Weight training — High school weight room is open each Wednesday evening from 8 to 10, with Eddie George the instructor. All equipment provided free of charge.

• Aerobic dance — Jeanie Rutledge instructs each Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 8 at the high school. The fee will be $5 and registration can be accomplished by calling the recreation district at 324-3389.

• Adult art — The beginning artist will be the focus of this six-week class instructed by Lowell White. The class will be each Tuesday evening from 7 to 9:30. Fee is $10 and materials will be provided.

Contract law ignored by federal agencies

© The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Several government agencies have violated the law by awarding at least $140 million worth of federal contracts without a required provision for minority or small business participation.

The violations — blamed in part on the newness of the law — were revealed Tuesday by Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., author of the legislation that went into effect in May requiring all federal contracting agencies to provide for minority and small business participation in major contracts.

Addabbo learned of the violations after writing all contracting agencies asking how they were complying with the new law. Although only a handful of agencies have reported so far, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said it has issued approximately 99 contracts worth $133.9 million without the required minority and small business provision. The Department of Housing and Urban Development reported it has issued $7.5 million in contracts without the provision.

Addabbo called the performances by the two agencies "very shabby" and denounced the "business-as-usual" attitude of the federal contracting officials.

Contracting officials blamed the non-compliance on start-up problems, vague regulations for implementing the law and the fact that some of the contracts in question were in the pipeline long before the law was implemented.

"Our figures are not so bad as they look," said Richard Clinkscales, director of the office responsible for carrying out the law at HEW. "The important thing is that we needed additional guidelines" before the law could be put into effect at HEW, he said. Clinkscales said he expected the program to be fully implemented by mid-December.

The first account of potential problems in carrying out the law surfaced last month in a national business publication, Electronic Buyers News. According to that account, "hundreds of millions of dollars of federal contracts awarded... since July have been ruled 'legally deficient'" by the General Accounting Office.

The GAO said so in an Oct. 19 letter to Addabbo that in those cases contracts might be modified, allowed to proceed or terminated and re-solicited. Addabbo and others said they do not expect wholesale cancellation of contracts.

GAO said Congress clearly didn't intend for the law to be implemented immediately but that federal agencies should have begun abiding by it as soon as implementing regulations were issued.

Addabbo's office said that in the case of civilian departments, that date was May 22, when the General Services Administration sent a telegram to all agencies directing them to use regulations written by the office of federal procurement policy. The telegram was published in the Federal Register in July, and several agencies are still working on their own regulations, federal officials said Tuesday.

"There were regulations there and they were told to use them and, in fact, they did not," said Thomas Trimboli, majority counsel to the House Small Business Committee. "There's no excuse for not implementing the law, especially when we spend about $2 billion a week in federal contracts."

The law, which was enacted in 1978, requires the government to tell contenders for major construction and procurement contracts that it intends to encourage minority and small business subcontracting and for the offeror or bidder to submit an acceptable small business subcontracting plan. Those plans are to be made part of the final contract. The law covers contracts of more than $1 million for construction and more than $500,000 for goods and services.

Eugene Baker, president of the National Association of Black Manufacturers, said Tuesday that government agencies have failed to comply with the law "because of closet racists and institutional racism" in the bureaucracy. Baker said he believes the Carter administration is committed to increasing minority and small business participation but that progress is held up by bureaucrats.

States vie for new telescope

©The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Maryland wants it. New Jersey wants it, Illinois wants it, Colorado wants it and California wants it — even though "it" will be 300 miles above everybody's head.

"It" is the Large Space Telescope, five tons of optics costing $500 million to be carried away from Earth by the space shuttle in 1983 and left in orbit to peer at the stars for the next 30 years.

None of the five states actually would get the telescope, which is to be the exclusive property of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. What they're competing for is the Space Telescope Science Institute, which will direct the use of this unique orbiting observatory.

Wherever the telescope institute is located will be the astronomical capital of the world for the next 30 years," said one astronomer, who asked not to be identified. "This is the biggest astronomical prize to come along since the 200-inch (telescope) was built at Palomar for the Hale Observatory."

Competing for the institute are at least five astronomical consortia promoting at least five sites, including Johns Hopkins University, Princeton University, Fermilab outside Chicago, the University of Colorado and the University of California at San Diego. Occasional contenders are said to include the University of Arizona and the University of New Mexico, where numerous ground-based telescopes already are located.

The stakes in the competition hardly seem so astronomical: a building worth about $5 million, housing no more than $4 million worth of computers; staff of 150, three dozen of them astronomers, spending no more than $10 million a year. But small as its sounds, the institute will be the focus of most of the frontier work in astronomy for years to come.

"It will be the Mount Palomar of the next 30 years," one astronomer describes it. "No question."

The Larger Space Telescope (it has no other name yet) will have a lens 95 inches wide, less than half the size of Palomar's. But placed beyond the atmosphere, the 95-inch orbiting eye will be able to see 10 times farther into the heavens and 1,000 times more of the sky than Palomar does.

It will spot stars, the individual stars inside star clusters and nebulae, the remnants of dead and destroyed stars, possibly even planets circling other stars.

"It will unlock the heavens the way the microscope unlocked the cell," said Dr. Arthur D. Code of the University of Wisconsin. "The difference is, this will be on a far grander scale."

So serious is the competition for the institute that three of the competing organizations are made up of no fewer than 74 universities. One (the University Research Association, or URA) is composed of 53 universities, another of seven and the third (Association for Universities for Research in Astronomy, or AURA) of 14 universities.

URA wants the institute in Fermilab, 60 miles outside of Chicago. AUI wants it at Princeton and AURA at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore. Oddly, Princeton is a member of AURA and Johns Hopkins is a meber of AUI. Serious students of the competition think that the choice is between Princeton and Hopkins.

Princeton's agreement is that it is a hotbed of astronomical ideas, where Einstein worked for more than 20 years. Hopkins points out that it has been involved in spaceborne astronomy for 20 years, is close to places like Princeton and even closer to places like Washington and the Goddard Space Flight Center, where the Large Space Telescope will be tracked and controled.

The two states where much of the nation's astronomy is done seem left out of the competition. The California Institute of Technology, the University of California at Berkeley and Harvard University are all members of AURA, which is backing Johns Hopkins as the site for the institute.

In a matter of weeks, NASA will send out requests for proposals, the bureaucratic way of starting the bidding. NASA says it will not make a decision for a year and then only on the recommendation of a specially appointed source evaluation board.

Politics already is at work. Members of Congress and senators from the five competing states are lobbying hard at the space agency, which is so sensitive about the issue that nobody at the agency connected with the project will talk about the competition. Said astrophysics director Frank Martin: "I'm not allowed to say anything about it."

Hazardous substances transport increasingly dangerous to public

WASHINGTON — Trucks and rail tankers transporting hazardous materials pose an increasing threat to health and safety, federal safety officials say.

"There is always a potential for a disastrous explosion," said one official from the National Transportation Safety Board, commenting on the explosions in Canada and Florida over the last three days from derailments of tank cars carrying chemicals such as propane and liquid chlorine.

Hazardous substances are transported by hundreds of trucks, and trains daily through major and small cities across the country. The sudden overturning of a speeding truck or derailment of a train on an old, deteriorating railroad bed can spill dangerous chemicals and set off major fires and explosions.

The threat to the public from these accidents is increasing because of the rising dependence of industry on chemicals, many of them potentially dangerous, and the growth in the size of trucks and tankers spurred by a desire to cut transportation costs.

There are about 10 to 12 accidents a year on thes average in this country most of them minor, involving hazardous materials. But occasionally serious mishaps occur such as the derailment in Florida early Sunday when two locomotives and 29 cars spilled off the tracks causing what one official called a a "potential time bomb" from flammable propane being carried in the cars.

In 1967, the Interstate Commerce Commission cleared the way for the larger tank cars by permitting changes that increased the size of pressurized tankers by 200 per cent. This meant that the builders could raise the capacity from 11,000 gallons to 33,000 gallons.

There are reported to be about 23,000 of these pressurized tanks cars now in service in the United States carrying ever growing shipments of such hazardous materials as liquefied petroleum gas for fuel, chlorine for sanitation and anhydrous ammonia for fertilizer.

After a hearing by the National Transportation Safety Board 18 months ago, a report was issued which said that there had been "no analysis or full-scale testing of the consequences of crashes before these jumbo designs and equipment were placed into service."

The board urged the operators of the pressurized tank cars to install "bumper" shields and safety couplers to cut down on the risk of serious accidents. A total of $200 million is being spent in a three-year safety program to "retrofit" these tankers, which carry a large part of the most hazardous materials. But industry officials noted that these improvements will benefit only a fraction of the 170,000 tank cars in service
